NEW SERIES FOR 1836.

THE NEW-YORK SPIRIT OF THE TIMES.

A METROPOLITAN GAZETTE

Of the Sporting, Fashionable, and Literary World.

ON A PLAN MORE COMPREHENSIVE, ORIGINAL, AND ATTRACTIVE, THAN ANY WEEKLY JOURNAL IN THE UNITED STATES.

W. T. PORTER, EDITOR.

THIS JOURNAL would regularly reach the close of its fifth volume in January, 1836; but in order to perfect the various arrangements that have been entered into for the improvement of the next volume, the present series will be continued up to the 6th of March, 1836, at which time the next volume and a new series will be commenced. Yet, all those who may subscribe before that time, by remitting the amount of their subscription in advance, will be served with the paper for one year, dating from March 5th, as well as with the intermediate numbers of the paper.

The Spirit of the Times is essentially a Sporting Journal; but as it is a well grounded objection against all mere sporting papers, that they are extremely monotonous, the plan of this publication will include a wider range; and the concerns of Literature and the Drama, Foreign and Domestic Intelligence, Doings in the Fashionable Circles, &c., &c., will fall within the scope of our design, and render it at once grateful to the sportsman and general reader.

For the fulfilment of our purpose, numerous subjects will claim our attention; and first, the

SPORTING DEPARTMENT.

The Turf.

The prominent design of the Spirit of the Times, will be to promote and give interest to the sports of the Turf. To this end, it will present a complete American Racing Calendar, made up with that accuracy which alone gives value to a register of the Turf. The Races over the principal courses in the Union will be reported by our own agents and correspondents at the earliest day; and for the results over other courses, we shall rely, as heretofore, upon the kindness of the Secretaries of Clubs.

And, in order to render this department still more comprehensive and valuable, the affairs of the ENGLISH TURF will receive constant attention; and the whole racing matter of "Bell's Life in London" will be regularly republished by us, with very copious extracts made from the English Sporting Magazines.

Blooded Stock.

All importations of Blooded Stock, and all important sales of stock at home and in England—selected essays on the breeding and management of horses, and a regular review of Stallions, with pedigree, performances, &c., wil be published in our columns.

Trotting.

Constantly increasing attention is now paid to Trotting Horses in this country; and the cities of New York and Philadelphia, beyond a doubt, own more horses of superior strength and speed, as trotters, than all America besides—and England to boot. We shall take every care that full justice is done to them in our TROTTING CALENDAR; and that an interest may be given to this department, and a wholesome rivalry maintained, we shall record all the great trotting feats both in this country and in England.

Sporting Intelligence.

So great is the number of our correspondents at home, and so complete are our arrangements abroad, that we do not hesitate to promise our readers earlier Sporting Intelligence than can be procured through any other channel. Under this head we shall also give the times of the different Races to come, Lists of Sweepstakes open, Racing and Trotting Challenges, and all the On Dits in the Sporting World.

Field Sports.

Early reports of the meetings of the Washington and Monreal Hunts are promised us by gentlemen as spirited and graceful with the pen as when they "touch knees across the saddle or under mahogany." The doings of similar associations at the West and South will meet with a cordial welcome from us.

It would be idle to go through with "promises of performance" upon all the manly diversions which give zest to life;—suffice it that we are determined to make The Spirit of the Times a COMPLETE SPORTING PAPER, and in its columns will be found, at intervals, the discussion and the narratives which appertain to the following subjects; merely premising that AQUATIC SPORTS and PEDESTRIANISM, which are becoming daily more popular with us, shall henceforth find a more extended notice.

The American and English Turf,
Importations and Sales of Blooded Stock,
Breeding and Training;
Racing and Trotting Challenges,
American Races to Come,
Sweepstakes Open throughout the Union,
On Dits in Sporting Circles,
Pedigrees & Performances of Celebrated Horses,
Coursing and Hunting at Home & Abroad,
Shooting and Fishing,
Rifle & Pistol Practice in America & Europe,
Rowing and Sailing,
Instructions for Young Sportsmen,
Pedestrianism, Skating, and Rural Sports,
&c., &c., &c.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

Although the leading objects of our paper are of a sporting cast, our readers may rely upon it that we shall not be behind hand in light and elegant literateur; and if we confine our originals to notices of New Books, Reviews and Magazines, and discussion of current letters, we shall make ample amends by our selections from the choice Belles-lettres of America and Great Britain, and could we bring our taste up to the standard of our industry, we would promise at once that the selected portion of this department should be gay, graceful and spirited.

THEATRICAL DEPARTMENT.

As an object of lively interest, the Drama will demand our best efforts. Without stint or measure, but with candour and impartiality, we shall take cognizance of the novelties presented us at the three establishments so generously fostered by the bounty of this community. Occasional statements will be given illustrative of the condition of the English Stage and the standing of the brightest ornaments of the profession. With means adequate to the task, we shall bring to the undertaking an untiring resolution and an unbiassed mind.

Aspirants to histrionic distinction may always look to us with confidence for encouragement and support. We shall be foremost to give publicity to humble worth and neglected talent; and although we can never prostitute our columns to uphold the undeserving, we shall eagerly seize the opportunity to extend a helping hand to the timid and unknown, and re-assure them with our might in their course "up Fame's proud summit."

Dramatic Miniature Portraits.

A novel, and we have reason to believe, a popular feature in this department, will be our plan of occasionally giving DRAMATIC MINIATURE PORTRAITS of some of the distinguished performers on the American Stage. The necessary arrangements to accomplish this end have long been in progress. In each sketch will be given a succinct and authentic biography of the subject, interspersed with familiar anecdotes of their debuts and subsequent rise in their profession, critical notices of their popular characters, their peculiar style, etc. etc.

Besides, many others that will be hereafter named, the following ladies and gentlemen have been selected to grace our Dramatic Portrait Gallery.

Theatrical Gossip.

GREEN ROOM INTELLIGENCE will form an item in our Theatrical department, in which we shall ever and anon record the positions and the movements [illegible] of the theatrical firmament; and readers may look to our columns for information of this kind with all confidence of learning the true whereabouts of their errant favorites.

SALMAGUNDI.

This is the miscellaneous department of the paper, and it will be so managed, we hope, as to give zest to all the rest. It will be composed of every variety of material: sober news, both foreign and domestic—remarks upon the fashions—fun and frolic—scraps and oddities; in fine, every thing we can glean of wit and merriment, will be crowded into our columns.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

To aid our own endeavors in sustaining the interest of the paper, the Proprietors have gone to the expence of establishing a FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE, which will be in full operation by the issue of our first number in March. Upon this source we shall rely for early intelligence of English Sporting, as well as for interesting details of Foreign Theatricals, and fashionable scandal, &c. &c. And, at the same time, we shall carry on an extensive domestic correspondence; and our readers shall hear as often as they will from the lively letter-writers of distant cities, as well as from our old and popular correspondents, The Girls up Town. And, lest all these attempts to please should fall short of our wishes, we shall commence in March the publication of a or Series of Caricatures.

And if these fail to make our readers laugh, it will be because the American Johnston and English Cruickshank have ceased to sketch, or grown musty in their wit.

Such are the prominent features in the plan of our publication. With considerable experience, and some enthusiasm in the chosen line of his profession, the Editor will only pledge himself to his readers for the most zealous and untiring industry.

The New Series of the New York Spirit of the Times will be published on the 5th day of March next, and on each subsequent Saturday morning, at $5 per annum, in advance, on paper of the finest texture, of the largest imperial size. It will be printed in the quarto form, on beautiful type.

Quarterly subscribers will be charged $1 50.—Office at 171 Broadway, (entrance in Courtland-street.)

DRAKE.

BY F. L. WADDELL.

Bard of the lofty sounding lyre,
Thy strains so wild and bold;
Were nerved with freedom's holy fire,
In sweetest cadence roll'd.

'Twas thine to sing in matchless lays,
That flag so dear to fame;
And with its splendor beaming rays,
Link thy immortal name.

On towering hills, by steep ravines,
Where thundering torrents foam;
'Mid nature's most romantic scenes,
'Twas thy delight to roam.

The gentle thoughts of life were thine,
Their pure rich glow impart,
With feeling, truth and grace divine,
A fragrance to the heart.

Now freedom mourns that one so young—
So gifted breathes no more;
The bard who hath her glories sung,
Sleeps by the surf-beat shore.*

Oh thither oft when smiles the moon,
And bright stars gem the sky,
The water nymphs their shell harps tune,
With woodland fairies hie.

And all their minstrel slumbering,
The sylphs a dew pall spread,
While airy sprites with breeze bells ring
A requiem o'er the dead.

Yet tho' in death the bard lay low,
His fame can ne'er decay,
Long as Magava's billows flow,
Or lives the Culprit Fay.

SELECTIONS FROM ENGLISH PAPERS.

Covent Garden Theatre.—This theatre will open to-morrow at reduced prices. Boxes 4s., pit 2s., lower gallery, 1s., upper gallery, 6d.; boxes half price 2s., pit half price 1s., at which prices the house will hold about £450. Mr. C. Kemble will enact the part of Hamlet, and Miss Taylor Ophelia. Mr. Power will make his first appearance on Monday week.—Bell's Life of Oct. 18th.

Queen's Theatre.—A crowded and fashionable audience greeted their old favorite Wrench, on his re-appearance at this theatre on Monday night.

Mr. George Jones, from New-York, sustained the part of Hamlet, at the Victoria Theatre, on Thursday, and displayed considerable talent. He was most favorably received, and will repeat the part to-morrow-night.

Mr. F. Vining and Mr. Webster are to appear next week, for the first time, at the Adelphi.

The English Opera re-opens to-morrow night with a new drama, entitled The Mutineer's Vow. The prices are reduced to the same scale as Covent Garden.

Mr. Elton has been performing during the week at the Pavilion Theatre.

Will Reckless, a nautical drama, is in preparation at the Adelphi. Mr. Addison is said to be the author.

The new tragedy in rehearsal at Drury-Lane, is from the pen of Barry Cornwall, and bears the title, we believe, of The Provost of Bruges. Macready and Vandenhoff are to sustain the principal characters.

ADELPHI.—The Mysterious Family, a new two-act burletta, was produced at this Theatre on Monday night.

OLYMPIC.—A new burletta, in one act, called The Two Queens or Politics in Petticoats, was performed at this theatre on Thursday.

Miss SHIRREFF was expected to arrive in London yesterday, to resume her post at Drury-lane.

Mr. [illegible], the equestrian, while going through his evolutions at Astley's, on Friday week, burst a blood-vessel, and was conveyed home in a dangerous state.

The building of Braham's vaudeville theatre, is progressing with astonishing rapidity.

No man ever went a hundred miles on foot in twenty-two hours, although we think it is not impossible.

An advertisement appeared in a morning paper on Tuesday for a gentleman to undertake to teach the classics, writing, and arithmetic, salary thirty pounds. In the same paper is an advertisement for a footman, wages not to exceed thirty pounds with a livery. The gentleman to find himself in the vacation. The footman, of course, to be well housed and fed all the year round.

Shillibeer, the father of the London omnibuses, has started an omnibus to Brighton, under the newly imported title of "Diligence," with a Coupee a la Francaise for three persons; four outside and eight inside.

Mr. ——— once asked Kean whether he would act to a hundred critics, all accustomed to sit in judgment upon acting, or to a mixed assemblage of 5000 people. Kean's reply was—"Give me the numbers." And he was right; for it is safer to trust to the general sympathy, than to the penurious charity of professed critics, or the fantastic humors of particular men.

Covent Garden theatre, it is calculated, will hold about £450 nightly, at the reduced prices.

Paul Clifford, with music by Mr. Blewitt, is to be the first novelty at Covent Garden. This piece is adapted by the stock workman, Mr. Fitzball.

Funeral of Bellini.—This imposing ceremony took place on Friday week, at the Church of the Invalides at Paris. Long before the first hour fixed for the commencement of the service, the sacred edifice was crowded with the elite of Parisian society, all the celebrated composers now in the capital, and a great number of the most distinguished artists, drawn together to pay the last mournful honours to the remains of Bellini, so prematurely cut off in the ripening bloom of his life and talents.

Scroggins was seen bargaining on Friday with Mr. Rogers the wholesale undertaker, for a wooden surtout, whether for himself or any body else, he did not state, although he intimated it was for an "individual" about his own size. He complained of the expense of the article, and talked of the "shot in his locker being low." The price was settled, omitting the shroud, and Jack promised to call again; but before "he departed," he prevailed on Mr. Rogers, who is "a wery gentlemanly sort of a man," to "stand a drain."

Archery.—A prize shooting took place last week in the neighbourhood of Hull, between some members of the Hullshire bowmen and the Kingston archers. At the close of the shooting, the umpire (Lieutenant Kildyard, R. N.) awarded the prizes as follows, viz.:—Captain of numbers, Mr. B. Harrison; Lieutenant of numbers, Mr. John Milner, jun.; the best arrow in the gold, Mr. W. T. Clarkson.

Pedestrianism.—Edmund Wild, of Heywood, will run Alfred or Allen two miles, for from £30 to £50.

Jack Kendall, the Liverpool Chicken, wishes to inform Sam Rutter of Manchester, that he is willing to make a match with him for £20 aside.

Daring Attempt and Wager for £500.—A gentleman well known in the sporting circles, offers the above wager that he will dive off the top of the balustrades of Westminster bridge; and will also take odds to any amount that he will do the same, going off wih a cat in his hands, and dive to the bottom of the Thames, bringing it again to the surface of the water alive. We suspect the cat will have the worst of this amusement.

A few days ago a pigeon alighted on the roof of a house at Flushing, and afterwards took shelter in the infirmary of the barracks. Being exhausted with fatigue, it was easily taken; and, on examination, was found to have under its wing a small piece of English newspaper, containing the price of stocks at London, on Sept. 23. The conjecture is, that the winged messenger was destined for Antwerp, but was driven out of its course by some bird of prey.

The French lotteries are to be discontinued at the end of the present year. The offices at Valenciennes have already been closed.

The King of Prussia has lately sent to Prince Paskewitsch a sword enriched with diamonds, as a token of the high esteem in which he holds his military talents.

Accounts have just been received of the loss of his Majesty's frigate Challenger, which was wrecked on the coast of Chili, on May 13th. The whole of the officers and ship's company were saved, with the exception of a midshipman named Gordon, and one seaman.

The Provoked Husband was excellently played lately at Drury Lane. The chief novelty and charm of the revival was Mr. Macready's first appearance as Lord Townley. In the hands of an actor who numbers among his great qualities extreme sensibility, exquisite tenderness and delicacy, with unstudied dignity and natural refinement, Lord Townley could hardly lose the least of his moral grace. The least even of his external ones was scarcely missing. The perfect ease, the unaffected grace, the polished manner that rendered this portraiture of refined character one of the most enchanting we ever witnessed, were not more marked, nor were they less, than the masterly art with which the stronger emotions of the character were gradually brought into play; the flexibility of power with which they were subdued and harmonized; and the inimitable beauty of their struggle for mastery in the closing scene.

A KENTUCKY FIGHT.

"Ay, gouge and bite—pull hair and scratch!"

The fight—the fight—oh, yes! I will tell you the story! It was at a small ordinary tavern in ——. I had dined, and was sitting at the fire, toasting my toes, and smoking a segar. A noise attracted my attention, and on turning I found it proceeded from half a dozen burley fellows—beauties, they called themselves—that had come there to wind up their constitutions with potations of rye whiskey. Glass after glass of the crittur went down their throats with the accompaniment of oaths and yells, and with each glass they became more and more elated. It was election-day, and they were qualifying themselves to give jumpers for their crack candidate, who had just finished a stump speech about half a mile off.

"He's a screamer," said one.

"He's bottom," said another.

"He's grit to the back bone—plenty of liquor," said a third.

"He's real republican—no ruffled shirt or clean hands about him," said a fourth.

"Hurrah! hurrah!" they yelled together, and were just leaving the room when they saw me.

"Aha! a Yankee, by all that's mighty!" cried one of them; "come, stranger, tote out here, and bolt this liquor"—and, as this was said, a tumbler filled to the brim with raw whiskey was put into my hand.

"I'm a temperance man," said I; "it is against my principles"

"D—n your principles!—run the water!" cried one.

"Pour it into his ears!" exclaimed a second.

'Or down his throat with a tunnel," said a third.

'Come, stranger," bawled a fourth, approaching and grabbing me by the collar—

"Handle him!" cried another.

"Gentlemen, I——"

"Don't gentlement us," said the first; "we're no gentlemen, no how you can fix it; we're raal wolf-breed, born in a canebrake and suckled by a hippopotamus—raal Kentuck from the tips of our noses to the end of our toe-nails."

"But, gentlemen——"

"Come, none of your gumfudgeon to us; down with the liquor at once, or, instead of a gentleman, we'll make less than a man of you in the twinkling of a thunderclap."

As he finished, I set the glass down. They swore I should drink it. I remonstrated in gentle terms; told them I loathed it; pretended sickness; but they cursed me all round the compass, and calling me a white-livered fool, swore I should drink it.

Gentle words having no effect, I thought to intimidate them by a show of bravery, and to that end took out one of my pistols. They told me they were not to be skeered so easy, and only cursed me the more roundly, while one of them again put the glass into my hand. I must confess that I found my courage fast leaving me; and I was in the act of raising my hand to quaff the liquor, thinking it the only way to be rid of a bad scrape, when a yell of triumph burst from them, and determined me on a different course. I dashed the vessel into ten thousand atoms.

In a moment a scoundrel had me by the collar; the next I had flung him off, and was standing in the corner with my pistol presented.

"I will shoot the first man that dares to touch me," said I.

"Hurrah, stranger, that's gritty!" shouted one, a giant of a fellow, as he approached.

"I shall fire," said I.

"And be d—d," said he, still advancing.

I took deliberate aim, and, the instant he touched me, I pulled.

The cloth flew from his frock, and, retreating a step or two, he broke into oaths:

"By Gand, stranger," said he, "do you know me?—do you know what stuff I'm made off? Clear steamboat, sea horse, alligator—run agin me, run agin a snag—jam up—whoop! Got the best jack-knife, smartest wife, blackest child, shaggiest dog, fastest horse, prettiest sister, and biggest whiskers of any man hereabouts—I can lick my weight in wild cats, or any man in all Kentuck!

"Well," said I; and I stood stock still, looking at the fellow, and wondering what he meant.

"Come out here," said he; "come out here, if you're a man—rough and tumble!"

"Gouging!" said one of the gang.

"Look ye!" said I, "look ye, scoundrels—I do not well understand you—you are large men, I am small—but let me caution you, that you won't find me so feeble as you think. I can thrash the whole of you, one at a time."

Years before I had practised sparring successfully and upon that ability I was determined to rely.

There was a pause.

"What say you," said I, "are we to quarrel."

They all nodded, and began to rub their hands.

"Well," said I, "chose any one of your numbers—promise you will not interfere, any of you, and there is my pistol"

As I said this, I discharged it—the ball rattled against the chimney and rolled back on the floor. One of them picked it up.

"Hellfireation, it was loaded," said he, "it's black with powder, and hot now."

"Loaded," said the fellow I had shot, "to be sure it was—see there!" running his hand into his bosom, and pulling it out covered with blood—"loaded, yes that it was, and we must have it out."

"Then you and I are to fight, hey," said I.

"To be sure—all ready!—cocked and primed—all ready!"

At this there was a general outcry, all present setting up a shout, and shaking their hats.

"Wait a moment," said I, "I'm not ready so fast—I heard you speak of gouging—are we to gouge?"

"Ay, gouge and bite—pull hair and scratch!" was the answer, and again they yelled in chorus.

"And strangle too, I suppose," said I, thinking if any thing would have an effect on them, it would be a show of self confidence and coolness.

As I spoke, I tore off my stock with a jerk, and the collar and bosom of my shirt followed—by which means my chest became exposed, and as he caught sight of it, I saw him quail—and well he might, for it is frightful—constant exercise and daily habit of sparring has thrown out the muscles, so that when he saw them they were quivering among the luxuriant black hair with which my breast is covered, like a wounded and exasperated snake.—"Come on," said I, throwing myself into a position to receive him.

He leaped at me—I sprang aside, and he struck the wall with such violence that it stunned him, and he fell at my feet. Impatient I waited his recovery, for I felt that I could easily level him. At length, he gathered himself up, and with curses set upon me—I parried his blows, and gave him two in return—one in the pit of the stomach, and one in the face, that made the blood gush from his nostrils in a steady stream—he staggered against the wall, and stood there retching and panting for more than a minute, with the blood and whiskey running together from his mouth—but the next moment I was under him, as helpless as a babe, stunned and suffocating. Suddenly, I felt his great hand wreathed in my hair, and the thumb approaching my right eye, digging about my temple. I remembered what I had heard—it was gouging!—the thought was madness—with one effort I grappled at his throat—I reached it—I seized the loose flesh, and twisted it—he uttered a shriek of agony—his hold began to loosen—his swollen tongue lolled out of his mouth—his hand fell, and his breath rattled in his throat—I quit my hold, and he rolled from me senseless, black in the face, and apparently dead.

I trembled in every joint, shuddered for fear I was a murderer, and fell senseless at his side.

* * * * * *

I revived—opposite was my antagonist, already recovered, and his comrades. He took me by the hand, and acknowledged himself beat. We spent the day together, and they were ready to worship me—to fight for me, for I had conquered their champion.—New England Galaxy.

Western Land Sale.

Some weeks ago, we gave upon two different occasions, an account of the manner in which the squatters upon the public lands in Illinois managed to purchase lands at the public sales at the minimum price, by intimidating competitors, and thereby preventing them from bidding. It seems, however, that these gentry now and then meet with their match, as will be seen by the following statement recently related in the hearing of a friend of ours, by one of the parties.

Colonel M—, of Virginia, attended the sales at Chicago, during the last summer, in company with nine other Virginians, who were determined that they would not be bullied out of their rights, and that if it suited them they would bid for the lands at all hazards. They accordingly prepared themselves with pistols and other arms, provided for any issue that might arise! One night before the sale, Col. M. walked into the room where about twelve or fifteen of the squatters were assembled at a tavern, and after eyeing him pretty sharply, one of these semi-barbarians got up in a swaggering style, intended for the ear of the stranger, remarked aloud, "if any speculator bids for my land, I'll shoot him." Upon hearing this threat, the Colonel very promptly replied, that it was his intention to bid for any land he should think proper to buy, and said he, "if shooting is your plan, why the sooner you begin, the better. Let's at it at once," and then pulling out of his pocket both of his pistols, he placed himself in an attitude of menace. The boldness of his conduct thunderstruck his ruffian opponent, who did not seem to be so chuck full of fight as he pretended, and nothing was said by either of the party, but "we will see to-morrow."

To-morrow came, and Col. M. was so exasperated against the fellow who had made the threat, that he took pains to ascertain which was his tract of land, with the determination of bidding for it. When it was put up, the Colonel bid for it above the minimum price, when a voice in the crowd roared out "who is that bidding against me?" An answer was promptly and loudly returned—"John M—, of Virginia." The squatter finding that he had no child to deal with, abstained from any more threats, and Col. M. became the purchaser of a tract, which he would not have done but for the bully's impudent attempt to frighten a Virginian. The success of this experiment emboldened another person who lived in the vicinity to bid for another tract, but no sooner did he transcend the minimum price than he was surrounded by a band of desperadoes who would perhaps have maimed or killed him, had not the courageous Virginians interposed to save him.

After the sale the Colonel went to his land to take possession, and supposing it possible that the occupants might resist his right by force, he took with him his escort of Virginians, but no squatter was to be found—he knew too well what sort of folks he had to deal with. The other poor fellow, however, who had attempted to bid, was murdered a few days afterwards, supposed to be for his presumption, in bidding for public land at a public sale, which he had just as much a right to do as those who murdered him. The Colonel and his Virginia friends, on the other hand, so far from being attacked, actually became popular with the squatters, who treated them as a mark of respect for their courage.—Phila. Gazette.

Anecdote of Dwight and Dennie.—Some few years since, as Dr. Dwight was travelling through New Jersey, he chanced to stop in the stage hotel in one of its popular towns for the night. At a late hour of the same evening, arrived also at the inn Mr. Dennie, who had the misfortune to learn from the landlord that his beds were all paired with lodgers, except one occupied by the celebrated Dr. Dwight. "Show me to his apartment," exclaimed Dennie; "although I am a stranger to the Rev. Dr., perhaps I may bargain with him for my lodgings." The landlord accordingly waited on Mr. Dennie to the Doctor's room, and there left him to introduce himself.

The Doctor, although in his night-gown, cap, and slippers, and just ready to resign himself to the refreshing arms of Somnus, politely requested the stranger intruder to be seated. Struck with the physiognomy of his companion, he then unbent his austere brow, and commenced a literary conversation. The names of Washington, Franklin, Rittenhouse, and a host of distinguished literary characters, for some time gave a zest and an interest to the conversation, until Dr. Dwight chanced to mention Dennie. "Dennie, the Editor of the Portfolio," says the Doctor in a rhapsody, "is the Addison of the United States—the father of American belles-lettres. But, sir," continued he, "is it not astonishing that a man of such genius, fancy, and feeling, should abandon himself to the inebriating bowl?"

"Sir," said Dennie, "you are mistaken. I have been intimately acquainted with Dennie for several years, and I never knew or saw him intoxicated." "Sir," says the Doctor, "you err. I have information from a particular friend: I am confident that I am right, and you are wrong." Dennie now ingeniously changed the conversation to the clergy, remarking that Abercrombie and [illegible] among the most distinguished divines: nevertheless, he considered Dr. Dwight, President of Yale College, the most learned theologian, the first logician, and the greatest poet that America has produced. But, sir," continued Dennie, "there are traits in his character, undeserving so wise and great a man, of the most detestable description: he is the greatest bigot and dogmatist of the age."

"Sir," says the Doctor, "you are grossly mistaken: I am intimately acquainted with Dr. Dwight, and I know to the contrary." "Sir," says Dennie, "you are mistaken: I have it from an intimate acquaintance of his, whom I am confident would not tell me an untruth." "No more slander," says the Doctor: "I am Dr. Dwight, of whom you speak." "And I, too," exclaimed Dennie, "am Mr. Dennie, of whom you spoke."

The astonishment of Dr. Dwight may be better conceived than told Suffice it to say, they mutually shook hands, and were extremely happy in each other's acquaintance.

Irish Pugnacity.—Our readers are aware that the British Association of Arts and Sciences has recently been held in Dublin. Now Pat has no notion of large meetings of men without a "bit of a row." Accordingly in Dublin, about the middle of the week (the people all greatly pleased with the bustle of the Association, and the better informed anticipating much benefit from the meeting, not merely to science, but to the general interests,) one worthy in the street "convanient to the college," thus addressed his comrade. "I say, Paddy, this mating is a grand thing intirely, and sure it is going on mighty sweet and peaceable." "Yes, sure it is," replied Pat; "but bide a bit. By my soul it's impossible that such a many at a fair can part without a fight!" The assembly, notwithstanding this prediction, dispersed in peace, and without a single head broken.

Considerable Risky.—Niebuhr, the historian of Rome, frequently shaved while walking up and down the room, and would even talk during this dangerous operation.

An Imperial Surprise—The Emperor of Russia at Vienna.—The Autocrat, about a week ago, dropped one day, as if from the clouds, upon the good people of the Austrian capital, throwing, by his unexpected apparition, the Russian Legation into the greatest fright, and the Austrian Court into no inconsiderable embarrassment. His smoking horses brought the carriage up to the door of the hotel of the Embassy, but no bustle met his arrival; and for a considerable time even the bells, which were set ringing with fury by the postboys, remained unanswered. The fact was, that as no notice had been given of the emperor's intentions of visiting Vienna,—and it was even known that his post-horses at Prague had been ordered for quite a different direction (such is the custom),—no preparation had been made for his reception. The unfortunate Attaches were mostly in the country, amusing themselves; and even the Chancellerie of Russia was for the nonce all but a desert. It happened, however, by some lucky accident, that two remained behind—the Prince Gortschakoff, Councillor, and M. Kondriaffsky, Secretary of Legation, who did their best to give the Emperor a reception. Nicholas, however, is good-humored—he appeared to enjoy the surprise, overlooked all want of form, and made the best of his way to the first dressing-room which he found open. There he ordered his baggage to be unpacked, and, after despatching a messenger to Schœnbrunn, to announce his arrival to the empress dowager, began to dress for his visit to the Palace. But the people at the latter place were as much taken by surprise as the more humble hangers-on of the embassy. The emperor Ferdinand had not yet arrived from Prague, though he left it before the Autocrat, for his journey was rather retarded by the indisposition of the empress; and as Austrian etiquette has no resource in such unlooked-for cases, the marshallers of the courtly ceremonies knew not which way to turn. Expresses were despatched to the Emperor Ferdinand, to hasten his return to the capital; but it was hopeless to expect it, as the Autocrat had declared that he could not wait beyond the same night or the next morning. A reception was, however, got up—the Archdukes Louis and Ferdinand, and such others as were in the way, were marshalled: the manner of the Dowager Empress was impressive, and the ceremony passed off well.

FORGET THEE.

"Forget thee?"—If to dream by night, and muse on thee by day;
If all the worship, deep and wild, a poet's heart can pay;
If tears in absence, breathed for thee to heaven's protecting power;
If winged thoughts that flit to thee—a thousand in an hour;
If busy fancy blending thee with all my future lot;
If this thou call'st "forgetting," thou indeed, shalt be forgot!

"Forget thee?"—Bid the forest birds forget their sweetest tune!
"Forget thee?"—Bid the sea forget to swell beneath the moon;
Bid the thirsty flowers forget to drink the eve's refreshing dew;
Thyself forget thine "own dear land," and its mountains wild and blue;
Forget each old familiar tree, each long-remembered spot;
When these things are forgot by thee, then thou shalt be forgot!

Keep, if thou will, thy maiden peace, still calm and fancy-free;
For, God forbid, thy gladsome heart should grow less glad for me;
Yet while that heart is still unwon, oh, bid not mine to rove,
But let it muse its humble faith, and uncomplaining love;
If these, preserved for patient years, at last avail me not,
Forget me then—but ne'er believe that thou can'st be forgot!

Adieu.—There is a something beautifully pious and tender in that word of sad import, "adieu!" It means—May God guard you—to God I commit you!

The Way they Court Down East.—Sally, the housemaid, paring apples in the corner.

Enter Obadiah, who seats himself in the corner, opposite to Sally, without saying a word for fifteen minutes; but finally, scratching his head, breaks silence with—

"There's considerable imperceptible alterin of the weather since last week."

Sally. 'Taint so injudicious and so indubitable cold as 'twas: the thermomicon has lowered up to four hundred degrees higher than zenith.

Obadiah. I think's likely, for birds of that species fly a great quantity higher in warmer days than cold ones.

Both parties assume a grave and knowing look, and a long pause ensues. Finally, Obadiah gives his pate another harrowing scratch, and again breaks silence.

"Well, Sally, we chaps are going to raise a sleigh ride, it's such inimical good sleddin, to-morrow."

Sally. You are? Our folks are suspecting company all day to-morrow.

Obadiah. I s'pose they'll have insatiate times on't. I should be undefinitely happy if you would disgrace me with your company: I should take it as a deropitary honor; besides, we're calculating to treat the gals copious well with rasons and black strap.

Sally. I should be supernatural glad to disgrace you: but our folks suspect company: I can't go.

Obadiah sits scratching his head awhile, and at length starts up, as though a new idea had come upon him.

"Well, now I know what I'll do: I'll go home, and thrash them ere beans what have been lying down there in the barn sich a darned while. [Exit Obadiah.

For the Ladies.—A letter from a young American, at present in the Pacific, published in the Cincinnati Gazette, says:—

"I like the people of Chili much better than the Peruvians. They are more pleasing in their manners—more intelligent and hospitable.

"As a place of residence, it is generally preferred to any other on the coast. There are a few Americans and English families there at Valparaiso, and their hospitality is unbounded to their countrymen who are strangers. It is now the residence of Mrs. S——, formerly Miss S——, who you must recollect, if you have ever read the letters of B——, written during his residence on the coast. She was the goddess of his idolatry while he was in the Pacific. In fact, she turned the hearts of half the men between this and Canton: but her history is that of many of your sex. Having had repeated very advantageous offers, she married a poor man at last—has children, and all that!

An Affecting Scene.—In the Court of Sessions, on Saturday afternoon, an affecting scene took place, while the Recorder and his associate Judges were engaged in passing sentence upon the different prisoners who had been convicted during the term. The young wife of Silas Smith, (convicted of forgery in the third degree, and adjudged to be imprisoned in Sing Sing for two years and a half,) who had been married to the unfortunate man only about three weeks, went to the cage after he was sentenced, and, sobbing and heart broken with grief, stood kissing him through the iron grates that separated them, until they were forcibly parted by the officers in attendance. Scoundrel as he was, she had plighted to him her faith and her affections, and with the enduring constancy which characterizes a woman's love, her feelings were unchanged even by the felon's brand which was marked upon the object of her fond devotion. When torn away from him, it was with difficulty that she could be prevented from fainting: and she left the Court to sorrow over the miserable fate of the man she had hoped long to live with in happiness and joy—and, peradventure, become the victim of wretchedness and grief.—*N. LATE FROM NEW-YORK.—Freeman Hunt is amus[ing] himself with writing letters to the Boston Evening Gaz[ette]. Hunt is a clever fellow, and a quondam associate of ou[rs], and we hereby immortalize him by quoting a paragraph [or] two from his rambling epistles:—

"I find that Willis' great fortune turns out to be o[nly] about four hundred pounds a-year, and something handso[me] on the decease of somebody. But his 'ladye love' is said to be passing fair."

[A small mistake this: Willis got "something handsom[e]" besides his wife when he married We'll tell you what [it is] a con-si-de-ra-tion!]

"I will give you an anecdote, which I had from a frie[nd] of the late Gov. Tompkins. A farmer called on J. F. Ho[p]kins, of Vernon, Oneida county, in this state, (New-Yor[k]) and requested him to write to the Governor for two piec[es] of artillery; the state allowing that number to any associ[a]tion of able-bodied men, amounting to thirty. Hopkins was a somewhat distinguished lawyer, a great wit, and great knave into the bargain. He told the farmer to write but the latter was too modest to write to a Governor. So Hopkins, after some persuasion, wrote as follows:

'Great [illegible],
We write to thee
For two big guns and trimmings;
Send them to hand,
Or you'll be ——,
By order of Captain Jennings.'

"The letter was sealed and directed by the lawyer, and the modest Captain Jennings deposited it in the post office. His Excellency was fond of a joke, and the cannon were despatched forthwith."

A MAGICIAN "used up."—It will be seen from the annexed statement from the Boston Transcript of last Saturday, that some "tarnal Yankee" has been playing a "Yankee trick" on Blitz, the professor of conjuration, legerdemain, &c.

Senior Blitz requests us to say, that hereafter he will dispense with the gun trick. He has been induced to do so from an occurrence of last evening, when the person who was to drop the bullets in the gun, did actually load it, unobserved by him, with some pins, shot or nails, which struck his hand when the gun was discharged, and wounded him very severely. The audience were highly indignant, and hissed the offender out of the room. When Senior Blitz exhibited in New York, a person put a slug of lead an inch long in the gun, but he accidentally discovered the trick, withdrew the charge, and exposed the offender to the audience In England, once, a Clergyman brought his own gun and powder, and loaded with shot, which was discovered by filling the pan too full with priming powder, and on striking the gun with his hand to shake some of it out, a shot which had not been well wadded down, ran out of the gun and fell on the floor. To us it is one of the most marvellous things in the world—much more so than any trick Blitz performs—that people of common sense, who go to such entertainments, knowing they are to be deceived, and who enjoy them more the more complete the deception, will interrupt the exhibition by childish tricks of their own, which evince only stupidity, or wanton tricks, which evince malice and wickedness.

A Dun Editorial.—The Pawtucket Chronicle, under the head of "Last Notice," says its delinquent subscribers "will readily see the necessity of attending to this call, as we cannot wait forever." That is a long time, certainly, to a man that is in a hurry for cash. But, friend, thy phraseology is unfortunate, as it seems to convey the idea, that a payment made any time short of forever will answer the purpose: therefore, thy dilatory subscribers will take heart of grace to hurry themselves even less than before. But there is very little use in newspaper duns, word them as you will; for, to apply the words of Sir John Suckling to such subscribers—

"If of themselves they will not pay,
You cannot make them—
The devil take them!"

"It is inconceivable," says a German writer, "what a power God has given to the human voice, when rightly employed, and poured forth in a simple and sustained flow."

Among the good-humored yet audacious affectations of the London exclusives is, the on dit that the king is not fashionable, and is rather among the nobodies! Indeed, both civil and military power has often to bow to that of bon ton. The duke of Wellington waited one evening a long time for entrance at Almacks, and was finally dismissed because he had arrived from the house of Lords a few moments after the hour of entrance prescribed by the despotic lady patronesses.

"It is no wonder," says an English traveller in America, "that the people here die of consumption, for they keep all their windows down, and do not continually supply their rooms with fresh air."

"It is no wonder," says a German tourist in England, "that the people here die of consumption, for they have always their windows open and sit in draughts."

The celebrated English air "God save the King," was taken by Handel from the French.

Melancholy Expression.—Madame de Stael has remarked upon the words "no more," that both in sound and sense, they are more descriptive of melancholy meaning than any other in our language. If not before these, at least second in the scale, may be placed the second word, "alone," and next to this "never."

Value of Time.—It is known by Ernesti, the German editor of the best edition of Cicero, that when a person extended a visit to him over ten minutes, he would rise, point to a large clock, and say, "you have been here ten minutes."

Beautiful Simile.—Byron thus compares the decline of day to the dying dolphin:—

"——— Par ing day
Dies like the dolphin, whom each pang embues
With a new colour, as it gasps away;
The last still loveliest, til—'tis gone—and all is gray!"

A Lucky Miss.—The seconds in a late duel, who on the first discharge had nearly been hit by their principals, on reloading and delivering them their weapons, observed, perhaps it will be as well for you, gentlemen, the next time to fire at each other."

Homer.—What wisdom there is in the father of poetry! With a few omissions, it is the very book for children. I know of no story except Robinson Crusoe, which fascinates a child so much as Homer. It is all natural, simple, and capable of being understood by a child.

A Punctual Correspondent.—A married gentleman in the East Indies is in the habit of receiving lengthy and affectionate epistles from his wife in Europe. These he never opens, but carefully lays them by, tied up and labelled according to their dates, in order, on his return, that his wife should read them to him all of a lump.

The Poetry of Sound.—There is something exceedingly warm and tender in the Irish words "Cushla machree"—the pulse of my heart—it is expressive of that deep-toned affection which the heart alone can understand.

CIRCULAR.

THE co-partnership heretofore existing between Messrs. Solyman Brown and Samuel Avery, being, by mutual consent, dissolved, the subscriber begs leave to present to his friends and patrons the following from Mr. Brown, who is now absent at the South with Mr. E. Baker, Dentist, of this city.

Norfolk, Virginia, Feb'y 10, 1835.

This certifies to all persons who may be interested therein: That Mr. Samuel Avery has been my joint partner, for the year past, in the business and profession of Dental Surgery, and that we have practised together in the city of New-York, and also in the British province of New-Brunswick: and, furthermore, that his professional knowledge, skill, and talents, are of the first rank, entitling him to the reputation of a first-rate Dentist; he being especially distinguished for neatness, address, and gentleness in his surgical operations upon the teeth: and, furthermore, that he, the said Samuel Avery, is not only a man of honesty and integrity, but of ingenuity and talents, being in my opinion and belief, well governed in his intercourse with his fellow-men, by the principles of honor, and an enlightened religious conscience: and, furthermore, that, having dissolved our partnership by mutual agreement, and for our common convenience, I hereby commend him to the confidence of all my friends and acquaintances, and to any other persons who shall repose confidence in my opinion of his profession and moral character.

SOLYMAN BROWN.

As it is known to most of our friends, that the last summer and autumn were spent by us in the province of New Brunswick, the following from the Hon. Wm. Kinnear, Barrister, Recorder of the city, and Member of the House of Assembof New-Brunswick, relating to the character we there sustained, is respectfully presented

St. Johns, 17th Nov., 1834.

I have just perused the very flattering testimonials from Mr. Parmly, and other gentlemen of New-York, in favour of Messrs. Brown and Avery, two gentlemen who have, for some months past, been practising as Dentists in this city, and at Fredericton, and so far as my own experience may be allowed to speak, as well as from what I have seen and heard, among my connections and friends, I have great pleasure in cordially agreeing with what have been therein expressed. Indeed, their incessant, and, I should imagine, harrassing engage-ments, at all hours of the day, for many months, sufficiently establish the estimation in which they were held by the public, among whom were to be found the most distinguished and respectable of our citizens. We should be much gratified by an annual summer visit, and trust those gentlemen will find it sufficiently agreeable and profitable to accomplish such a plan. W. B. KINNEAR.

The subscriber will continue to perform all the operations belonging to the Dental profession, at his present stand, No. 4, Park Place, nearBroadway.

New-York, 28th March, 1835. SAMUEL AVERY.

a sovereign remedy for the Asiatic Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Dyspepsy, and Indigestion. Also, for their

an infallible relief for Coughs, Irritations, and Inflammations of the Lungs. They respectfully inform persons troubled with any of the above complaints, that there is no quackery about their medicines, as the following certificates will testify. They have upwards of 200 more, with signatures equally respectable with the few they now lay before the public. To be had at TAYLOR & SON'S Repository, 5½ Division-st.

To Messrs. Taylor & Son:

Gentlemen—As a friend to merit, and opposed to imposition, I take this opportunity to return you my sincere thanks for the beneficial effects I have received by taking your medicine, known as the Hygeian Anthos Syrup. It, in my opinion, surpasses all medicines for the diseases which it is labelled for. I have given to some of my friends, and they concur with me in my opinion; and I sincerely hope the public will appreciate its worth as it deserves.

BURN CLANCEY, Wholesale Distiller, No. 9 Cross-st. New York, Sept. 15th, 1835.

The Hygeian Anthos Syrup having been handed me by Taylor & Son, requesting I should institute experiments to discover the presence or absence of mineral matter in its composition—I hereby certify, as the result of my chemical analysis, that it contains neither mercury nor other mineral substance, and that it consists entirely of highly approved articles of the vegetable materia medica.

Dr. LEWIS FEUCHTWANGER, Professor of Chemistry. New York, August 20, 1835. 377 Broadway.

To Messrs. Taylor & Son:

Having seen your advertisement of the Hygeian Anthos Syrup, and labouring under the disease of the bowels (diarrhœa), I purchased one bottle of it, and I can with full confidence recommend it to the public as a safe and certain remedy for that disease. DANIEL B. HYATT, 7 Sixth Avenue.

Messrs. Taylor & Son:

I avail myself of this opportunity of returning you my sincere thanks for the beneficial effects my family, together with myself, have received by using a medicine manufactured by you, by the name of Hygeian Anthos Syrup, which is well worthy the attention of a discerning public.

This may certify that I have used Taylor & Sons Hygeian Anthos Syrup, for the Cholera Morbus, and found it a speedy and effectual relief, and recommend it to the public as a remedy for that disease.

FRANCIS MURPHY, 227 Elizabeth-st.

This I may certify—I have experienced great relief in the cure of the diarrhœa, by the use of Taylor & Son's Hygeian Anthos Syrup, and recommend it as a safe and certain remedy. ED. THOS. KINGSBURY, 161 Second-st.

DISEASES OF THE SKIN.

IN vain has the faculty of medicine exhausted its resources, in attempting to treat diseases of the skin through the medium of the stomach. Hitherto, for centuries, the "Regular" practitioner has adhered to the routine of mercurial and diaphoretic medicine, in hopes to reach the skin by gradually undermining the constitution; or, according to the phrase of his own approved theory, by creating a disease within, to counteract the one without. For the success of the above treatment, we leave those who have been compelled to labour under the most loathsome cutaneous diseases despite of it, until nature had exhausted its venom or its victim, to give a just reply.

It was in view of these errors that Dr. WEED, professor of Botany and Physiology, sought out and discovered his VEGETABLE OINTMENT, which has proved an infallible remedy for Salt Alum Itch, Scald Head, and all eruptions and tumors of the skin, as hundreds have testified, requiring but a few applications. It is evident that disease, depending on a morbid secretion of the skin, must be treated by direct applications to it; and this ointment not only checks this morbid secretion, but creates a healthy action in the part, leaving the skin smooth and natural. Its effects are certain and immediate. It is therefore submitted, as the most efficacious, and at the same time the cheapest remedy, ever discovered. Ask for "Weed's Vegetable Ointment," and see the directions and recommendation around each bottle. To be had of the Druggists, 63 Bowery, corner of Walker-street, and 243 Hudson-street; also, of Hart, corner of Broadway and Chamber-street, and Smith, corner of Front and Fulton streets, Brooklyn.

FOSTER'S SYSTEM OF PENMANSHIP,

OR THE ART OF RAPID WRITING illustrated and explained, by B. F. Foster, Teacher of Writing and Book-keeping, author of Development of Carstair's System; Prize Essay on the best method of teaching Penmanship, &c.

ALSO,

FOSTER'S ELEMENTARY COPY BOOK, No. 1, 2, 3, and 4, adapted to Schools and private instruction. For sale by the author, at his writing establishment, 183 Broadway—$1 25 per dozen—12 1-2 cents single.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—The intrinsic difficulties which embarrass a child in his early attempts to acquire the art of writing, are too often overlooked by those whose duty it is to superintend this department of education. The principal cause of these difficulties is, that he is required to attend to at least a dozen different things at one and the same moment; namely, the position of the body and paper; the manner of holding and conducting the pen, the length, slope, and relative distance of the letters; the fulness and proper swell of the main and curved strokes; the uniformity of the top and bottom turns, &c. Each of these objects is new to him, and therefore difficult; and by demanding attention to so many things at once, the consequence naturally follows, that neither is learned well nor easily. Months and years are thus wasted in vain attempts to acquire the art. The pupil goes on from day to day, in the same beaten track, till bad habits are acquired and confirmed, often to be as lasting as life.

To obviate these difficulties, Mr. FOSTER has introduced a new process of teaching, by which the pupil cannot fail to obtain a practical knowledge of Penmanship in one third of the time usually devoted to that object. It consists of a series of writing books constructed upon a novel and ingenius plan, whereby the width and position of the letters, the distance between them, the points where the hair strokes are to commence, and the length and thickness of the down strokes, are all determined in the ruling with mathematical exactness, and must, in practice, render it impossible for the learner to write otherwise than with neatness and regularity. The copies progressively arranged, are "set" at the head of each page through the Books. The whole system is founded on natural and philosophical principles, and differs essentially from any other process extant.

It affords the most simple, easy and efficient means for the speedy attainment of fine Penmanship, as every pupil, however negligent, is compelled to form his letters correctly and with care throughout his whole book, whether the teacher is present or absent. Each succeeding stroke, therefore, will be an amendment upon the former; but when the letters are made improperly, (which happens nine times out of ten, by the old method of teaching,) every repeated effort confirms a bad habit, and renders the learner more and more unfit for becoming an ELEGANT AND EXPERT PENMAN.

Parents and teachers are respectfully invited to call and examine these improved copy books.

☞ Mr FOSTER continues to give lessons in Penmanship and Book-keeping, day and evening, as usual. Rooms, 183 Broadway, over Mr. Mithau's Druggist Store.)

DYSPEPSIA AND LIVER COMPLAINTS.

THE PATENT MEDICINÆ STOMACHICÆ ET HEPATICÆ, formed by chemical analysis and synthesis, of several proximate vegetable principles, are universally acknowledged to have totally eclipsed the pretensions of every other remedy, and superceded the necessity of every other mode of treatment, whenever the above diseases are found to exist, as well as in enlargment of the Spleen and in Jaundice.

Among the symptoms of Dyspepsia and Liver complaints, are flatulency, soreness or burning in the stomach, melancholy, irritability, disagreeable taste in the mouth; great irregularity of appetite, which is sometimes voracious, and at other times greatly deficient; thirst, fetid breath, nausea, weakness of the stomach, acid eructations, palpitations, drowsiness, irregularity of the bowels, pressure on the stomach after meals, pain in the head, dizziness or vertige; confusion of mind, attended with loss of memory, a gnawing in the stomach when empty, chilliness, affection of sight and hearing, pain and weakness in the back, languor, disturbed sleep, cold feet.

During the last year, THOUSANDS with joy testify to their great efficacy, like the following:

LAURENS COUNTY, Ga., Nov. 4th, 1833.

To whom it may concern.—The undersigned was severely afflicted with Dyspeptic and Liver affection for many years, and followed the advice of physicians considered eminent in their profession, without being benefitted. I finally tried Dr Peters' Medicinæ Stomachicæ et Hepaticæ; and after making use of two parcels, found myself restored to perfect health my countenance, instead of being pale and haggard, resumed its former healthful appearance, and, incredible as it may appear, I gained nearly twenty pounds additional weight in the short space of ten weeks. It is five months since I stopped taking the medicine, and I have felt no return of the disease, nor have I the least reason to suspect that I shall. I would earnestly recommend all persons similarly afflicted, to make trial of the same remedy. BRYAN ALLEN.

Prepared by JOSEPH PRIESTLEY PETERS, M D. P.B.C.P.M. at his Institution for the cure of Chronic Diseases, by means of vegetable remedies, No. 129 Liberty-street, New-York, inventor and sole proprietor.

N.B. To prevent imposition, each box of the genuine medicine will have a fac-simile of the proprietor's signature on the label; it will also be on the directions, circulars, and showbills accompanying them, and his name will be stamped on the bottles.

Druggists and country merchants will be supplied at wholesale, on reasonable terms.

For sale, at retail, by Wm. T. Peters, Liberty-street, New-York, where further information relative to their operation may be obtained, and numerous certificates seen, of their unrivalled efficacy.

Dr. P. returns sincere thanks for the very extensive patronage that has been extended to him since his arrival in this city, and hopes to merit the continued and united support of his old friends, and gain additional new ones.

Dr. P. would advise those laboring under obstinate disease to apply soon, as he purposes visiting Europe the first of next May. n21

DR. HARVEY BURDELL, Dentist,

GRADUATE IN MEDICINE AND SURGERY, and Member of the New-York Medical Society, confines his attention to the mechanical and surgical branches of the DENTAL ART, as he has done for the past four years, at No. 21 Chambers-street, near City Hall-place.

Dr. B. has the privilege of referring, as to his ability to perform the various operations on the Teeth, to many of the first families, and to some of the most able and skilful surgeons of the city.

Dr. B. does not wish to be viewed as many of the profession are, as recommending or performing any operation on the Teeth that would not result preservative to them. He has made the physiology and structure of the teeth (in connection with that of the legal medical profession) his study for several years; and can assert, with confidence and conviction, that many operations, as performed on the teeth by those who are (undeservedly) popular in the profession, result in injury to these nice and important organs; and he would further unhesitatingly assert, that the teeth of individuals can be preserved throughout life, both unblemished and undecayed, if proper care and attention is bestowed upon them after the completion of the second dentition.

Dr. B. feels grateful for the liberal patronage he has been honared with heretofore from the citizens of New-York, and respectfully assures them that no exertion on his part shall be wanting to merit a continuance of the same.

Dr. B. inserts the porcelain incorruptible teeth, matching them with those that may be still remaining in the mouth, so that the most impartial observer cannot detect them; he warrants them to remain firm and imperishable during the individual's life time, without in the least changing their color or affecting the breath;—other kinds of teeth likewise inserted and all the branches of the profession judiciously and carefully attended to, such as plugging, cleaning, evening, extracting, separating, and regulating children's teeth. His prices are moderae and uniform. n7

NEW-YORK SPIRIT OF THE TIMES.

Office 171 Broadway, Corner of Courtlandt-street
ENTRANCE IN COURTLAND STREET.

SATURDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 12, 1835.

To our Subscribers.

The question has frequently been asked us by our friends in various quarters, why we admit so great a portion of our paper to be occupied by advertisements? and why we do not make the SPIRIT OF THE TIMES perfect as a sporting paper, by employing good reporters for all our races, by establishing a FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE, and by making a thousand other such improvements? Now the deficiencies of the paper are obvious to no one more than to ourselves; and the improvements suggested by our friends have not occurred to them alone, we can assure them. The ready answer which we have been compelled to make to all such inquirers has uniformly been, that the low price at which we afforded our paper would not allow us to incur any further expense for its management—that we gave all we could afford to give for $3 a year; and should starve at that, were it not for the income derived from our advertisements.

We have at last determined to alter our plan. The improvements called for will be furnished—every thing possible will be done to give additional interest and value to the paper;—but, kind reader, we shall charge you Five dollars per annum.

This new system will go into operation in March next: until that time, our paper will go on at the old pace and at the old price, and no effort of ours shall be spared to make it as interesting as ever. In March, we shall commence a new volume; and we would refer the reader to our Prospectus in another column, for a statement of the changes we propose making. The only points not there referred to concern merely the appearance of the paper, and the number of its advertisements. In its appearance, it will be in every way improved. New and prettier type, and much better paper will be used; and none but sporting and theatrical advertisements will be admitted, unless upon an extra sheet, and thus the reading matter of the paper will be increased proportionally with the increase of price. A few more words, and we have done.

Those subscribers who have already paid us in advance, will be served with the new paper without any additional charge, and for the same length of time as if no change had been made; after that period, they will of course be charged like all others.

Any person wishing to become subscribers, by remitting $5 in advance, will receive their paper from this date up to March, 1837, thus obtaining the numbers between this and march next, free of expense; and all our old subscribers who are yet in arrears to us, or those who have paid up to some time short of March next, by remitting the amount, if any, due up to January next, with $5 for the coming volume, will likewise receive the paper for one year from March, 1836.

To those of our subscribers who may decline to incur the additional expence of our paper, we can only say, hold on with us till March at the old rate, and even then we shall be most sorry to part with you. We regret as much as yourself that the Spirit of the Times cannot be made what it should be for $3 a year; but we have at last preferred the risk of losing many good and honest readers, rather than longer attempt to eke out a scanty subsistence for our paper and ourself on three dollars a year.

OUR RELATIONS WITH FRANCE.

Intense was the interest with which the arrival of the Message of President Jackson to the 24th Congress was awaited in our city. Sales of stocks and of lands, though they had been peculiarly active two weeks ago, had come almost to a stand still. Now that all have received and read it, we wonder how we could have anticipated so much effect from it.

The only relations of the country which could give peculiar interest to the Message, were of course those of France. On this subject the President is clear and dignified. Reviewing minutely the whole course of our negotiations on the subject of the claims, he maintains the same positions which he assumed in his message of '34; he disclaims no intention which he did not there disclaim, and then avails himself with dexterity of the advantageous ground yielded him by the French themselves in their awkward action on the subject. The question is now no longer of the the treaty of '31; the shrewdness of the [illegible] force of duced it to a narrower ground—whether a foreign nation has a right to interfere in any way with the domestic action of our government, and demand explanation of official communications addressed to another branch of our own government; in other words, whether we are responsible to a foreign power for the preliminary deliberations upon which the future action of our government is to be founded.

There seems now no question but Mr. Barton will return home. The only apparent chance of now avoiding a war with France, would seem to be, the hope which many entertain, that she will affect to consider the present Message as the desired "explanation." Inasmuch as this would be perfectly in keeping with the usual consistent and manly conduct of the French, we think there is some slight chance of it, and that the money will then be paid.

But, whatever France may please to do, it is gratifying to observe the unanimity with which the dignified stand of our President, and his positive refusal to "explain" his former Message, are received by our people. We admire the spirit which dictated the following remarks of the proud old General:—

"In any event, however, the principle involved in the new aspect, which has been to the controversy, is so vitally important to the independent administration of the government, that it can neither be surrendered nor compromitted, without national degradation I hope it is unnecessary for me to say, that such a sacrifice will not be made through any agency of mine. The honor of my country shall never be stained by an apology from me, for the statement of truth, and the performance of duty; nor can I give any explanation of my official acts, except such as is due to integrity and justice, and consistent with the principles on which our institutions have been framed. This determination will, I am confident, be approved by my constituents. I have, indeed, studied their character to but little purpose, if the sum of twenty-five millions of francs will have the weight of a feather, in the estimation of what appertains to their national independence; and if, unhappily, a different impression should at any time obtain in any quarter, they will, I am sure, rally round the government of their choice with alacrity and unanimity, and silence forever the degrading imputation.

Discrimination.—"The readers of such tedious long poems as the "Paradise Lost," or "The Course of Time," are not men endowed with an uncommon portion of poetic or romantic sensibility, but men of untiring and plodding application.—Woonsocket Advocate.

Spirits of Milton and Pollock! forgive the Woonsocket critic, for all the world is on one side, and he alone on the other. You wrote for immortal fame, he writes for the Woonsocket Advocate.—Pawtucket Chronicle.

Yes; they wrote for immortality beyond price—he, for five shillings' worth of string beans, rags, stale eggs, and cabbage stumps, the next grass, and not such a one of that.

A merchant, of Leesburg, Va., advertises "Ladies indefrizables, flats and fidgets, for sale!" and some dunce of a Down East editor cries out, with the voice of one "crying in the wilderness,"—"What the deuce are they?" We'll tell him. The "indefrizables," are touch-me-nots, or musn't touch-its, that is, bone squash busks:—the "flats," are pictures of nobodies like himself, to be worked as patterns on canvass-corsets, while the "fidgets are—are—shall we say what? No: we'll wait and ask Fanny Kemble's leave first!

Our poor Parisian milliners are half frightened to death, poor things, at the prospect of a rupture with la belle France. They had better become naturalized at once to matrimony and the Universal Yankee Nation. A Frenchified she Yankee is not a rarity in these 'ere parts.

Now the President's message has settled matters as straight as a loon's leg, we shall begin to hear all sorts of scandal and gossip from the Metropolis. Already people begin to talk of the carrying-on at Washington between the bachelors in Congress and the petticoated legislators out of it, among the pretty boarding-house keepers and their cupid-mouthed daughters. Grass will hardly grow this session over the Bladensburg battle ground; and they do say, hair-trigger shooting-irons are getting in demand. As Mr. Ritchie says—Nous verrons!

The inscrutable wisdom manifested in the selection of our "ancient and most quiet watchmen," begins to shine as clear as a dark lantern in a cole-hole. Dogberry's advice to his crew, "Take heed your bills (clubs) are not stolen," would not be thrown away on the Francis Seacoals of Gotham; for on the night of Wednesday week last, a party of mad caps, without the fear of shame or the Police before their eyes, did violently, feloniously, and with wicked intent, steal, borrow without leave, pull down and carry off, the outer door of the sub watchhouse in the Third District, although a large party of watchmen were in the house at the time. We should not be surprised if half-a-dozen watchmen were taken possession of some night by the gentlemen loafers, and their bodies sold to the surgeons in Barclay street for dissection, or pawned for a night's lodging in the market.

Pain-full.—John Howard Payne, litterateur, has been arrested in the Cherokee country, Georgia, by the State Guard. The Guard asked him—"What are you doing here?" He told them "I am collecting subscribers for my work called the Nklpmplt Phlemptrte." The Guard replied—"Sir, that's Cherokee for conspiracy—we arrest you instanter, in the name of the State of Georgia." And so he was. It is supposed he will be tried and hung on the next tree. Let us get up another benefit for him before he crosses the Styx.—Morning Herald.

The correspondent of the Boston Evening Gazette is "a caution." From his last letter, dated from New-York, we learn the important intelligence that John Mason, of this city, President of the Chemical Bank, and supposed to be worth three millions of dollars, was once a journeyman tailor. John Jacob Astor, the richest man in the United States, was originally a pedlar.

There is a rumor afloat, that Washington Irving is to be married ere long. This will be his best work.

These precious bits of gossip are not the only morceaux the nutmeg man has been able to hunt up. In describing the picture in the last Ladies' Companion, he says,

"It is illustrated with a beautiful poem from J. C. Hart, the author of 'Miriam Coffin;' and a letter-press description of John J. Adams. By the way, the latter gentleman [illegible] and again turned his attention to mer-

We should like to see the "letter-press description of J. J. A." When does Hunt commence his auto-biography?

☞ "If HUNT is connected with it, it must succeed"—at least so he says in the Evening Gazette.

After giving poor Reeve a rub, the facetious New-York correspondent of the Boston Evening Gazette attempts to be witty, and this of course is the only thing in his letter people will not laugh at. He speaks of the re-publication of Mrs. Opie's Works by the Messrs. Sandfords. So soon as the number of that work shall be finished containing Mrs. Opie's "Illustrations of Lying," we have ordered one to be forwarded to his "name and local habitation" forthwith, as a token of our appreciation of his sayings and doings.

Dr. Mackenzie writes to the Star, that the garrison at St. Helena is to be greatly reduced. The ashes of the great Captain entombed there, no longer cause apprehension.

"Duncan sleeps quietly in his grave—
Life's fitful fever is o'er."

Original Yankee Notion.—The Hempstead Inquirer man says he shall not be surprised to hear before long, that some "tarnal Yankee" has boiled up the Moon to make a pot pie!

The Post Office, at Waterloo, Md., having been removed to Savage Factory, the correspondents of Dr. George L Stockett, will please address him at Oakland Mills, Anne Arundell Co., Md.

Very True.—No man who loves his family fails to take a newspaper, says the Richmond Compiler.

HEALTH.—The cities on the Atlantic Seaboard have been unusually healthy this season. Only twelve deaths in Baltimore, for instance, last week, of white persons, and more than half of these children. New-York and Boston, not only, but Savannah, Charleston, New-Orleans, and Mobile, have escaped "the pestilence which walketh in darkness." Be thankful, serve heaven, and mend.

Bennett wants to know if any of the Baltimore editors will advertise for a wife for him! We trust not. We never remarked whether he had hoofs or no, but beg to assure the belles of Baltimore with a profound congé, that he is a cross of the Scotch and the Satyr!

The Bee has stopped its publication for the balance of this week, for the purpose of changing its dirty clothes.—Their new dress is highly spoken of.—New Orleans Union.

THE NAVY.—Every one is loud in declaring for an immediate increase of this right arm of our defence. The treasury is running over, and a portion of the funds lying in the pet banks should be applied to this object: our naval officers, too, should be well paid and provided for. A more gallant and patriotic set of fellows never floated.

The receipts on the benefit of the Woods' at the Tremont, last Thursday week, were $1532. Three cheers for Bosting.

Gov. Poindexter, the Senator from Mississippi, is ycleped by some of the Washington letter-writers "Old Poins." We should as soon have thought of christening Old Hickory himself with the cognomen of "Merry Andrew!" The old General can whip any three of them ten years hence with his crutch!

Tiger Bennet is trying to pick a quarrel with Ex-Sheriff Parkins. It's no go, any way he can fix it. Parkins won't stand any nonsense, no how. Bennet's second will certainly be "a gone goose," if B. aims in the direction of his eye. The pistols ought to be loaded with cow-itch and green peas.

☞ What has become of the New-York Rifle Club?—They are as mute as mice in a cheese since the Savannah exposé. Made any new targets, lately? Eh?

THEATRICAL GAG.—The President's Message was received in Philadelphia 10 minutes before 8 o'clock on Tuesday, less than seven hours on the road from Washington. The managers of the Walnut-street Theatre announced that it would be read from the stage the moment it was received in town, and accordingly, on its arrival, it was read by Mr. Conner to, we presume, "a crowded, fashionable, and delighted audience."

Complimentary, Quite.—Bennet has been telling a long cock-and-a-bull story about Ex-Sheriff Parkins. The reader will appreciate how near it approaches the truth, when they hear what General Bennet himself thinks Parkins will shout when he reads it, as thus:—

"Oh! the bloody editors!—the infernal editors!—the bloody rascal of the Herald—the infernal scoundrel of the Herald."

Mrs. Wood was confined to her chamber by illness, on Tuesday last, in Boston. They are engaged, at length, to appear at the Chesnut-st. house, Phila.

The wag of the Boston Morning Post has been attending a rehearal at the Menagerie in that city, which is about to open. The only parts decided upon for the first night of the season are, he says, a Prologue, by Mr. Hyena—Epilogue, by Mr. Tiger—Comic Song, by Mr. Monkey.

The Mobile Mercantile Advertiser warmly urges the claim of Miss RIDDLE upon its readers. Be pleased to remember, ladies and gentlemen, how we turned out here for your Miss Vos, and your "Old Sol," and how we mean to do it again!

The President's Message reached this city in Eleven Hours and twenty Minutes after its delivery at Washington, and was set up, printed and circulated in little more than four hours thereafter, by several of the different daily papers—The route travelled by the Express of the Courier and Enquirer, was about twety-one miles the hour.

Mrs. PRITCHARD plays (for a friend's benefit) in the going?

NEW MUSIC.—The pretty ballad of "She loves Me"—the duett from La Sonnambula of "Repose, my love, a lover's eye," and Mrs. Wood's song in the same new opera of "Still so gently o'er me stealing," have been sent us by the publisher, ENDICOTT, 359 Broadway.

ATWILL has also placed on our table, from his Music Saloon, 201 Broadway, a great variety of new pieces, among which is the celebrated finale of the new opera, "Ah! don't mingle one human feeling," etc., and Mr. Brough's opening song, "As I view these scenes," both from La Sonnambula.

The Hampstead Inquirer, printed down on Long Island, is as smart as a bear trap, lately. Here's a fowl slur on an English politician, and a beastly hit at the Menagerie folks:—

It is pomposly announced in a London paper, that 'Mr. Powlett Thompson has recovered from his attack of gout. The Right Hon. Gentleman left town yesterday, on a visit to the Earl of Essex at Canterbury Park, Hertz.' Tremendously important! It would avail, we opine, about as much, were we to announce that Mr. Thompson's pullet had recovered from a severe attack of catnip fits, and had gone on a visit to Hempstead Plains, in search of gravel stones wherewithal to fill her gizzard.

A Jonathan Gawk visited the Menagerie when exhibiting not a hundred miles off, and after looking around for some time at the several objects of curiosity, exclaimed, 'Hullo, mister keeper, I've seen all your lions, tigers, snakes, and them things—now fetch along your grand ca-ra-van, and let's have a look at that.'

Theatrical Gossip.

THE PARK THEATRE.

Mr. Reeve is still playing fast and loose—one night excellent well, and the next merely passably so. He might have "turned up a Jack," and being "high by card," would certainly have "made game," had he chosen: as it is, he is "low," and the probability is his parner, the manager, will "show [him] out." The exercise of his abilities in all their variety and strength for a week, would give him an exalted rank with the Park audience, among the low comedians who have "strutted their brief hour" before them during the last ten years. His future success in this country mainly depends upon the impression made here. The architect of his fortune is himself alone.

Mr. BARNES' farewell benefit takes place this evening when he will be "at Home" to the wide circle of his friends. His card will be found on the 8th page.

National Theatre, Washington.—This splendid establishment opened for the season on Monday, Dec. 7, with Macklin's comedy of the "Man of the World." The house was crowded in every part; the managers have every prospect of a most profitable season. The house will hold about $1200, and we presume that that amount must have been received on this first night.

The opening address was spoken by Mrs. Hughes, in a most impressive manner, and we have only to mention that the indefatigable manager, Mr. MAYWOOD, played in his usual happy manner the part of Sir Pertinax Mc Sycophant. With such support as was given by Messrs. Jefferson, Cline, Knight, senior Eberle—Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Jefferson and Mrs. Knight, the play could not fail in being well enacted. The after piece of "Turn Out" followed, in which Mr. Jones, lately of the Chesnut street theatre, ably sustained the part of Restive. Miss WHEATLEY played the part of Mrs. Haller on the second night to a very fashionable audience. Mr. JAMES WALLACK is announced for this first appearance for one year past, in the character of Hamlet, for Wednesday night.

The orchestra led by Mr. Diehlman, is superior to anything that has been heard in this city. The house is light and tastefully decorated, and altogether the arrangements are made on the most liberal scale.

The Old Theatre, in the same city, that has been under the management of Mr. MACKENZIE, is now closed; but it is generally understood that Mr. Wemyss, of the Walnut-street Theatre, Philadelphia, is in a treaty for it, and will shortly re-open it.

Mr. Preston is playing with a small company at Raleigh, N. C. The house has been recently painted, and the manager is reaping a golden harvest.

The Holiday-Street Theatre, in Baltimore, closed a few nights since, after a most unprofitable season. Every exertion was made by the managers, both as regards the strength of the stock company, and the attraction of the performannes; but Baltimore is decidedly the worst theatrical town in the Union. The American Theatre, in the same city, has been doing excessive bad business lately.—The prospect is, that now, without any opposition, their business may revive.

Wemyss closed his Pittsburg Theatre on the last day of November, after a short but lucrative season.

An attempt is about to be made to recusitate the theatre in Alexandria, D. C., but we fear without any prospect of success.

Mr. Barry has been getting up Robert le Diable at the Tremont. Mrs. Wood, we presume, has recovered from her indisposition, as it was announced for Wednesday night.

RUSSELL opened the Camp-st. theatre, New Orleans, on the 14th ult., with a powerful corps. Ere this, Charles Mason, Parsons, F. S. Hill, Eaton, and Mrs. Drake, have appeared. Booth is announced as forthcoming. Reynoldson is director of music, and [Long Tom Coffin] Scott stage manager. Thorne, Farren, Miss Rae, Mrs. Wallack, [late of the Park,] are among the number. Cuddy and Gambati are in the orchestra.

Ludlow & Smith are doing a good business at Mobile. Arthur F. Keene has settled there, we hear.

Charles Young, with Il Diavolo Antonio, are at Charleston.

Mrs. Watson, with Miss Charlotte, are engaged at the Chesnut street house, Philadelphia, with Walton, A. A. Addams, and Mary Duff. Burton's benefit on Wednesday last was a bumper.

At the Walnut-street, Yankee Hill and Ingersoll are engaged. We see they have Miss Waring, late of the Bow-

SHOOTING MATCH.—A grand shooting match, to continue two days, is to come off on the 21st and 22d instant at Parma, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio. Here is the manager's programme:—

First Day.—Dry Goods, Watches, Beefs, Fat Sheep, live Deer, Turkey, Geese, dun hill fowls, and probably other articles, or more of the same if wanted.

Second Day.—One live Deer, and other articles as above mentioned, and as many more as will be needed. Several Cows will be furnished also. All Beef Cattle and Sheep will be divided into quarters, each varying in value.

The following paragraph from the Bridgwater Patriot, shows the difference between a j and an l:—

"They have rendered themselves familiar with the principles upon which our government is based, and the jaws which bind together the social fabric."

The New England Galaxy, scribbled for by John Neal, thus concludes a mischievous notice of Willis' marriage:—

Really, the news is so good, that we would be tempted to doubt it did we not find the report reiterated in almost every exchange paper we open.—And then again, Boston claims the nativity of Mr. Willis; his parents reside here, and Mrs. Willis, the daughter of William Stace, Esq., of the Royal Arsenal, may possibly visit this country, and this city. Wipe your nose, boys—there is no knowing what you may come to before you die.

Selling for Cash!—"Hallo, George!" bawled an awkward, rum sucking six-footer the other day, to a boon companion, "I've sold DULL." "The dence you have!" replied George. "Yes, I sold him for $60." "Whew! s'pose you'll be able to treat on the head of it." "No, I didn't just exactly sell for cash, but I got two other dogs in exchange, which is the same thing as cash, you know."

Sporting Varieties.

Turf Campaigning, and "So on."

"Where are 'the softest places' to be found this season?" asked a respected Virginia correspondent of ours last September. "A gentleman with three tried horses, and as many three-year-olds, in old times, could guess where such a stable would win—at least, "enough to pay expences;" but in these days, a nag may be run in Norfolk on the 1st, and be paddled through more States, and be at more courses, during the month, than a few years since they could walk through Counties, or attend neighborhood meetings, during the campaign."

Our friend is right. Look at the nominations for the Gread Produce Sweepstakes, to come off in the Spring of 1838, on the Union Course, mile heats, $1000 entrance, $250 ft., for Three-year-olds, Colts and Fillies. [The stake closed on the first of January last, with Forty-four subscribers; published in No. 1 and again in No. 25 of the Spirit of the Times.] Let us see where these nags are all coming from, and what they may have been at, for a month, allowing the 2d Spring Meeting to be that named for the race.

Suppose we take those first from Virginia and Maryland. Well, here are the names of Johnson, Wynn, Botts, Heth, Minge, Randolph, Garrison, and Selden, with the addition of Oliver, from the District of Columbia. These gentlemen may commence their Hegira say, for instance, at Petersburg, Va., on the first Tuesday of May, with their whole force. By the second Tuesday, they are at Washington city; by the third, at Baltimore; and by the 4th, they are achieving triumphs on the Kendall Course, after "frightening from their propriety," by numbers and fame, the Clubs of Timonium and Haymarket.

After the battle on the "Old Central," they shoot off like comets, and in a week you hear of squads of them "clear out of the world," at Pittsburg, Pa. Then is "Monsieur Tonson come again" to the Old Dominion, and before the 1st of June you will hear reports of their doings beyond the mountains; and when you put your finger on them at Winchester or Wheeling, Danville or Lynchburg, by the Lord, like Paddy's flea, they ain't there. Here's a lot of them at Harper's Ferry, and some good ones at Bowling Green, Culpepper, C. H., or Christianville, and the next day, almost, you hear of them at Easton, or Port Tobacco, or Leonardstown, Maryland. We had like to have forgot mentioning that they had been in training the previous month, the first week at home, the second on the Tree Hill, the third on the Broad Rock, and the fourth on the Fairfield courses.

We left them all congregated at Baltimore on the third Tuesday in May, and have treated of the proceedings and doings of those who declined remaining another week for a chance of winning back their coin on the opposite side of the river, at Canton. Now comes "the tug of war." To travestie a Roman Senator,

> "Can a Southern Turfite long debate,
> Which of the two to choose—
> New-York or Home?"

No! Many a time and oft have they raked the Northern courses—have they "bearded the Douglas in his hall," and though they have "lost all, save honor," more than once, "Nil desperandum" is their motto. The flower of their stables is selected, and leaving the "Monumental City" on the last week in May, here they are by the first week in June in the "Commercial Emporium," having traversed Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, secure from the Scylla of rail-roads, and the Charybdis of steamboats, and after encountering more dangers by the wayside than the unlucky gentleman told of in St. Mathew, who going down from Jericho fell among thieves

And who pays the piper all the way from the Central Course to the Union. Why, all hands join in showing off before the Philadelphians on the Hunting Park: then they have "a passage of arms," not at Ashby-de-a-Zouch, but at Trenton, and eke at Bordentown, Rahway, and Monmouth.

They arrive at Jersey City on Saturday, and on Sunday evening cross the ferry to Gotham—walk carefully over the pavements to the opposite side of the town, and steam it again across to Brooklyn. By night they are comfortably stabled in the neighbourhood of the Union Course, making about a week or ten days from the time of starting at Baltimore.

On the 1st Tuesday of June they open the ball here, and after gallantly keeping it up for a week, they are off on the Sunday succeeding—make play at the second meeting at Trenton on their return, for three or four days, and by the next Monday they are winning at Philadelphia, and before Saturday of the same week, they have "flared up" at Newmarket, and are congregated around the Central, preparatory to the second Spring meeting, commencing on the third Tuesday of the same month.

The present has been termed "the age of brass;" better designate it the age of locomotion. To follow the route of a racing stable during the campaign, one would imagine they were not only propelled by steam with a three-hundred horse power, but were in danger, from the velocity of their movements, of jerking the very hair out of their tails! Why, Trifle came on here in the spring of 1834 and won the four mile race on the Union Course on a Thursday, beating Black Maria and Alice Grey, and on the Thursday following beat a field of five or six on the four mile day, at Three Hill, Virginia, over four hunared miles distant!

In the Great Produce Sweepstakes before alluded to, are also to be found the names of Craig, of Philadelphia, and Coleman, of Lancaster, Pa., with Stockton, of Trenton, and Laird, of Colts Neck, N. J., all good men and true, who are always in the nominative rather than the objective "case" when a sweepstake is on the tapis. Look at the Racing Calendar for the year 1835, and you hear of them one week making sport on the Union Course, and in another, they seemed to have sprung out instead of over the ground so newhere in the Old Dominion, to "to fright the souls of fearful adversaries," or are winning thousands of the chivalrous Marylanders.

Then look at Long Island, the Newmarket of New York, where winners are bred by the hundred, and fresh champions of the North are yearly "trotted out." At the head of the list of nominees stands the name of Livingston—a name as renowned in the history of the American Turf as in the annals of the country—with the old veteran, Maj. Jones, and Meade, and Snedikor, alike irresistible on their native heath. Escaped from the din and dust of Babylon the second, old Gotham, you meet on the Island at their several training stables, with the Messrs. Stevens—par nobile fratrum—with Wilkes, Ringgold and Gouverneur, turfites en amateur, and occasionally with the proud owner of Post Boy, Tillotson, from Tivoli, in old Duchess.

Though of us, and among us, their operations on the Turf are on an immense scale. Like Napoleon, they are skilful tacticians, and know how to concentrate their forces on a given point and time, though made up of detached masses. Plans are drawn out for the entire campaign. A few foraging parties scour the North perhaps, and others, like bands of Cossacks, make a descent upon the west, or a Hourra upon Jersey, while each squadron falls into line, one by one, like the divisions of a Field Marshal, as they progress towards the "seat of war," be it Maryland, New-York or Virginia. The "grand army," in its march, of course is joined by numerous bodies of recruits, and they always are enabled to "take to the field" in great force.—It is a matter of perfect indifference whether they "play or pay," at home or abroad. If the meeting is held, for instance, on the Central Course, will you not find the best blood of the North there to contest every inch of ground? And, are not Virginians, Marylanders, Pennsylvanians, and Jerseymen, as plenty as blackberries—our equals in numbers as well as in spirit, enterprize, and hospitatity at the meelings on Long Island?

The Old Dominion may boast of her "Napoleon of the Turf," but the New Yorkers lay claim to many a "Marechal d'Empire." They not only have Bluchers, Wellingtons, Schwartzenburgs and Platoffs, but Oudinotts (Oh, do not), and Victors that Ney to carry plates off.

"If we can spy into futurity a little," as Baron Pumpolino says, it will not be many years before we shall see a field assembled on a "central course," that comes from beyond sun rise and sun down!—When the Post Boys, Sharks, Mingos and Coras of the North shall contend with the Rodolphs, and Hephestions of the West—they with the Argyles, the Marions, the Heardhearts, the Malones, the Red Marias, the Bertrands, the Hamiltons, and Muckle Jahns, of the South, and all with the Trifles, the Black Heaths, the Vetos, Kamsedells, Rebecca Colemans, Bay Marias, Nancy Blunts, Sir Kenneths, Sally Eichinks, and Enceiros of the Middle States. May we be "on hand" to record the issue of such a day, and our readers "hold fast to that which is good" until it shall be accomplished. Amen!

Trotting on the Avenues.

The number of fast horses for which our city is so celebrated, is steadily accumulating; and the improvement in their time keeps pace with their increase. You will find no owner of a trotting tit who acknowledges he cannot drive him in his fancy drag, a little under three minutes to the mile. Indeed, this is the "stable rate" all over town; that is, it is the rate they are all made to go by their grooms and owners, while in the stable: when on the road, it sometimes happens they do not travel quite so fast; and then their betting "whips"—who were better not to bet at all—pay down many a "cool hundred," as martyrs to pride or victims to credulity.

To doubt the slightest doubt about a horseman's horse, or to question his speed and endurance, is rank heresy, and is sure to give rise to the argumentum ad betting 'em. A predecessor of our's illustrated this theory, some two years since, by the following crack story of a crack horse:—

"A southern merchant, now in our city purchasing supplies, met with a Pearl street friend, from whom he was buying goods; and who (as merchants sometimes will) boasted loudly, not only of his stock, but of his stable. 'Best supply of fall goods in the port—fastest trotting horse in the city; 16 hands—take nobody's dust—beat the black mare—brush with Tom and Jerry—in short, mile in under three minutes!' That this merchant-friend should think his dry goods drier, or his hardware harder, than another's, seemed natural enough, but the southener saw no good reason why his horse should have more foot than Forrest, or more bottom than Screw; and accordingly to betting they went. 'I don't think your horse has much foot,' said the southerner. 'He can go it in three minutes,' replied the Yorker. 'Then he cannot repeat.' 'He shall go five miles against any thing you can name.' 'Pshaw! I drive a hack horse every day from a neighboring livery-stable, who shall beat him five miles, for a hundred, if you'll give me a furlong on coming out.' 'Done! done!—put up the stakes!' The two hundred 'Biddles' were accordingly posted, and Saturday fixed on for the race. A large number of 'down-towners' started off with them to the trotting course, where the crack horse found many backers, but the hack horse none—for as he did not go in saddle, his better could scarcely be called 'a backer.' Trotting sulkies being procured, the two merchants started off with their respective goods, and bets were freely offered on the Pearl street nag.

"To the consternation, however, and surprise of all the lookers-on, 'the hack' gradually but surely took the lead of 'the crack;' and the good humor which had attended the race throughout, rose to the highest pitch on seeing him still ahead when they passed the pole that marked the half-quarter which the 'hack' was to be allowed on coming out. Our reporter assures us that the most hilarious mirth and gentlemanly feelings attended the whole party, during as well as after the race, and the owner of the broken favorite was not less good-humored than the gentleman 'hack' driver."

Who is there, who, driving a fast horse, does not claim him to be the fastest, safest, and most enduring? or who, having a favorite gun, does not proclaim aloud, that it will shoot quicker, surer, and further, than any body else's gun? You positively offend the owner of a horse by dwelling on the superior qualities of his neighbor's; nor is it less treasonable to dispute with sportsmen on the staunchness of their dogs, the accuracy of their Mantons, or the certainty of their aim. The owner of a pet watch would rather believe another Joshua had stayed the sun, than that his favorite Lepine could be too fast; and as New-York is not so exclusively famed for guns or chronometers as for fast trotters, it is "while talking horse" this foible is here most commonly observed. In former days, the horse that would trot twelve miles an hour was deemed a fast one, and his owner boasted loudly, proudly, and justly. But now nothing worse than three minute horses can be found. This is perhaps one of the most excusable vanities, since it affects no one's character or interest, and greatly encourages the breed of good horses. Our city has good reason to boast of her "trotting phenomenons," when four or five can do their mile in two minutes and a half—ten miles in harness in thirty minutes—eighteen miles within the hour—and one stable is backed in $5000, or $10,000 to trot one hundred miles in six hours, under the saddle, with an addition of large odds if allowed to perform the match in harness!

During the past and present week, repeated private matches have came off on the noble Avenues running out of the city, and some of them are rife with interest. It is our intention hereafter to take cognizance of those most distinguished for spirit, speed, and sport. A match last Saturday, between two gentlemen well known as the owners of "good 'uns to go," (J. R and W. M. T., Esquires,) has been much talked of in sporting circles. The gentlemen drove their own nags—Mr. T. a br. horse, and Mr. M. a s. mare. The mare was the favorite, as being the fastest, though she occasionally breaks up. They went for a supper for the friends and backers of the parties a distance of three miles on the road between Harlem and the Bowery.

Being brought up to the post in line, at a concerted signal, they sprung off head and head at a crash of speed. As they rushed down the avenue, the coast was cleared of equestrians and carriages, while pedestrians with trotters in boots and shoes made way for the trotters in harness, and cheered them as they passed. The mare is "a fast crib," and her short quick step told on the long and steady stride of the horse. Unfortunately for her owner, she broke up when put to her best work, and was inclined to be skittish in passing the vehicles on the course. However, she had the heels of the horse, and when near home, was so far ahead, that R. twisted himself round in his match-cart, to say to T., that as he must leave him, he would tell their friends in town he was coming! In looking back to banter his opponent, R. drew his mare a little off the track, and broke her up, when T., by a timely application of his persuader, come up, lapped, and finally passed, coming home a few lengths ahead, the short distance not allowing the mare to recover her advantage, thus affording another illustration of the proverb that "the race is not to the swift."

P.S. Since penning the above, we hear "The Priest," who is a knowing one, and an artist, calls his opponent a fresh catch'd one, and says he won the trot by the use of the tool and running about half way! T. is in high feather at his luck, and offers to come again. He is a workman, and can feather edge the drags in Broadway or on the Avenue, with the best whips in Gotham. We shall see who will bounce, though, as both parties are trumps, there is little doubt they will show again.

Trotting at Harlem.

On Monday last, the lovers of trotting horses had a day of diversion in their own way.

A few spirited gentlemen determined, for their own amusement, to make two sweepstakes, entrance to each 25 dollars, for the first of which there were entered 4 double teams, and for the second 8 saddle horses, both of which were to be gone for in the usual way in which they were in the habit of going on the road. Heats, twice around the track.

In the first sweepstakes, there was a very pretty show of trotting and driving, each gentleman striving to beat the other. This purse was won very handsomely by a pair of horses which we remember having seen win a sweepstakes some time since on the Centreville track. Each heat, of which there were four, was well contested; and we must say we never saw more speed shown by double teams. The winners took the 3d and 4th heats.

We regretted much an accident having befallen one of the entries for the saddle purse on the 1st heat, which stopped this sweepstakes—and it was drawn, of course. X.

PORT RENWICK COURSE RACES.

"One of the Judges" has forwarded to us the result of the races that came off last week on this course (situated at the head of Cayuga Lake, in Tompkins County, N. Y.) a spurious account having been given in an Ithica paper. It seems to us that a "Judge" might as well have given us the purses, ages, and other etceteras, if we are any judge in this matter.

First Day.—Purse $—, three mile heats.

Dr Phillips' br m Sontag, by Eclipse	1	1
Mr. Tully's gr m Effie, by Pirate	2	2

Time, 5:58—6:00.

Track in good order, having been scraped the day previous. The turns are short. [Nothing is said of fences to be leaped, or ditches to be hedged, in the account sent us, from which we conclude this is not an "all sorts of a course," notwithstanding the slow time.]

Second Day.—Purse $—, two mile heats.

Time not reported. From the great number of bye-bets, the sport was much heightened. After the heats of each day, lots of fun was afforded by a trial of from 80 to 100 roadsters and flash nags. Among the latter, who distinguished themselves, were John Bull, Southern Ball Mare, Harpinding's Duroc, Washerwoman, Swamp Robin, Southport Poney, etc. ONE OF THE JUDGES.

If the Devil who attends to the mailing of the Natchez Courier does not mind his eye, we shall "play the devil" with him. The Courier never misses us except at those precise periods when it contains something we especially desire to receive at the earliest possible date. The paragraph annexed, in that popular sheet of the 30th Oct., reached New-York on Tuesday last. We can freight a Yankee shingle with a box of bass-wood pumpkin seeds, and send them to Natchez in a little more than half the time. But to the paragraph:—

First Day with Mr. De Burg's Stag Hounds.

These celebrated hounds met at Dorley Wall on Tuesday last, and although perhaps on a first day the most brilliant sport is not anticipated, still the turn given to the numerous elite of the Sporting World and their prads was not to be sneezed at. Among the "swells" who showed on this occasion, were Count D'Orsay, Lord A. Fitzclarence, and Mr. G. Wombwell, none of whose "tits" did their masters or their grooms much credit. At a quarter before 12 the word "go" was given, and away two miles to Pole Hill. The deer turned out, and the usual law being given, the dogs went on a strong scent, and slashing work commenced. A very few minutes brought them to Ickenham, and even thus early some of the "dog's meat" began to show symptoms of distress; then turning near Uxbridge, passed Stanfield Lodge towards Ruislip, and obliged them to serve Mr. Stag with a process of ejectment, to disposses him of Newnham Woods, which gave them some trouble, and allowed the panting tits to come to. At last away they went, and skirting Moore Park, returned eight miles to Uxbridge, at tip top speed, without a check; where, entering the river, and afterwards the High street, and affording some excellent sport to the canaille, he yielded to his pursuers. This perhaps, for a first day, was as good as any for many seasons past, and in fact quite enough, neither men nor horses generally being quite "up to the work." Few dealers, who usually ride with these hounds, were out, and none of road UNDENIABLES, who cut out the work for the gentry. One we noticed, who resides not one hundred miles from Oxfort street, justly celebrated for riding such exceedingly fine horses, although with perhaps rather too much of the carriage breed; he might, however, have shown better judgment than to have ventured with these hounds, evidently being more suited for a "hard run" with the Burgh harriers. The above gentleman, with a few more, were doomed to return home to the care of their friends, trusting to a fertile memory for a faithful description of their day's sport, being perfectly innocent of any thing that happened during the run.—Bell's Life in London.

A SHOOTING PARTY.

On Tuesday last a few sporting characters were brough before the magistrates in this city, (Carlisle,) on the following charge:—The party, it appeared, had on the day previous part ken rather freely of "John Barleycorn," and took it into their heads to spend the remainder of the day in a shooting excursion. They accordingly quitted their po'ations, and off they set, half a dozen of them, with one gun among them all: but then they could take it in turns, and, as they had no dogs, they could field it themselves, and, like cricketers, bawl out "play," when they saw the game coming, as plainly as circumstances would permit. In the first mile or so, they met with nothing which put their sportsmanship to the proof, but on going a little further, one of the look-outs espied a bevy of rare birds, all in a cluster, and in the ecstasy of his joy, he bawled out to the gunsman "Go it—play!" No sooner said than done; the deadly contents were let slip, and six prime well-fed geese, which were quietly dozing, each upon one leg, with their bills thrust under their wings, lay sprawling upon the ground! The marksman was uproariously applauded as a dead shot, and, as there was just a bird a piece, they each swung one across his shoulder, and trudged off in quest of fresh adventure—never for a moment questioning their right to all of the feathered tribe which they could "bring down;" and it is difficult to say whose geese might not have shared the same fate, had not their odd appearance, as the sportsman reeled into Botcherby, each with a bleeding goose dangling at his back, created among those who saw them, first surprise, then suspicion, then something more easily understood by the delinquents, who took the hint, and sought safety in flight towards home. When they arrived there, it was found that only one goose had been preserved in the retreat; this was ordered to be cooked, and the sportsmen began to prepare themselves for the best part of the "sport." Meantime, the owner of these geese apprised the police of the affair, and an officer was sent in quest of the delinquents. He, at length, obtained a clue to their discovery, and entered the house just in time to spoil the entertainment, which was just going to begin. They were detained in custody all night. Some understanding was come to with the owner, who became satisfied that the whole affair was merely a drunken lark, and they were discharged on payment of fines, fees, &c., to the amount of £1 19s. Ib.

Love Me, Love my Dog.

The following extract from a letter, dated Frank for Oct. 8, shows the sympathy which Englishmen feel even in English dogs in a foreign land; and will convince our Continental neighbours that, if they wish to profit by the travelling mania of our countrymen, they must extend their courtesy to the animals by which they are accampanied;—"The immense number of English visitors assembled in the city of Baden for the benefit of the baths, has just been broken up, and put to flight in a most sudden manner, although a great portion had previously determined on making a long stay at that watering place. The following occurrence has led to this unexpected departure:—A young English nobleman, belonging to the elite of London aristocracy, had brought with him two sporting dogs of considerable value, which were seized by a field-ranger for a supposed breach of the game laws. The officer, instead of taking possession of the animals, shot them both in the presence of their master. We understand that one of the dogs had cost 100 and the other 50 guineas. The young Nobleman, supported by the entire of the English residents, presented a complaint to the Grand Duke of Baden, and insisted on the dismissal of the over-officious gamekeeper. This request was instantly complied with, and the English visitors seemed perfectly satisfied However, strange to say, two days had hardly elapsed, when the gamekeeper was publicly reinstated in his former employment, without any reason being given for this singular revision of the Grand Duke's decision The English residents viewed this as an insult offered to them generally, and they accordingly came to the determination of quitting Baden forthwith; and they set ont in various directions, and a considerable number have arrived here."—Ib.

Tecumseh.—A Western paper gives the following anecdote of this brave chieftain:—

"Gen. Brock once publicly took the sash from his waist and placed it round the Indian warrior Tecumseh. The chief received the honor with evident gratification, but was the next day seen without the sash. General Brock, fearing something had displeased the Indian, sent his interpreter for an explanation. The latter soon returned with an account that Tecumseh not wishing to wear a mark of distinction when an older, and, as he said, an abler warrior than himself was present, had transferred the sash to the Wyandot chief Roundhead. Such a man was the unlettered Tecumseh, and such a man have the Indians forever lost He has left a son, who, when his father fell, was about 17 years of age. To the son, George IV. sent a present of a handsome sword, as a mark of respect for the memory of his father.

An Active Veteran.—General De Souchozareth, aid-de-camp to the Emperor of Russia, recently arrived in London, charged it is understood, with despatches from the the Russian prime minister at Toplitz. The General is one of the most distinguished officers in the service of the Czar. He may be said to have lost three legs in various actions, having had two cork ones shot off since his own. Napoleon took him prisoner and gave him the medal of the Legion of Honor for his bravery.

Lord Egremont's br c, by Chatean Margaux—Emmelina (Macdonald) 1
Sir G. Heathcote's ch c Willesden, by Velocipede 2
Mr. Latour's g f Queen of Navarre 3

Betting: 2 to 1 on Emmelina.—Willesden made running to the distance, where the other two went up to him, and the race was so close until opposite the Grand Stand, that it was difficult to say which had the best of it; at this point, however, the Emmelina colt obtained a slight advantage, improved it in the few remaining strides, and won rather cleverly by about three parts of a length; there was not more than a neck between the other two. Willesden carried 5lb for winning at Egham.

Sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each, with 25 added; three year olds, 8st; four, 8st 4lb; five, 8st 11lb; six and aged, 9st 2lb; mares and geldings allowed 3lb; the winner to be sold for 100 sovs, &c.; mile heats; 8 subs.

Mr. J. Day's gr g Gab, aged	0	dr.

First heat: Gab made slow running till near the distance, where he dropped off; Leander and Deva immediately singled themselves out, and ran a pretty race home, the young one winning by about half a length.—Second heat: Hyderabad took the lead at a wretched pace, Airy and Jewess filly witing on him till within two distances of the Chair, when they passed him, and ran neck and neck at the top of their speed, to the finish, Airy coming in by a head only. Leander and Deva did not go for the heat.—Third heat: Hyderabad again cut out the work till round the turn, where Leander and Deva headed him, and carried on the running to the Stand; Deva dropped off here, and Airy and Jewess made an effort to get up, failed, and were beaten half a length; a good race for second. The winner claimed.—The betting before the first heat was 7 to 4 agst Airy, 2 to 1 agst Jewess, and 4 to 1 agst Leander; before the second heat, these three were at about 2 to 1 each, Leander having the call; after the second heat, even on Airy, and 2 to 1 each agst Leander and Jewess.

Thursday.—The Surrey Stakes of 20 sovs each, h ft, and only 5, &c.; D.C.

Mr. Gapp's Kate, 6 yrs, 8st 3lb; Mr. Dockeray's Pholus, 4 yrs, 7st 10lb; and Mr. Wickham's Nashenden, 3 yrs, 6st 9lb, paid 10 sovs each; and for Sir G. Heathcote's Samarcand, 5 yrs, 8st 12lb, only 5 sovs.

Sweepstakes of 5 sovs each and 25 added, for horses of all ages; three year olds, 7st; four, 3st 4lb; five, 8st 11lb; six and aged, 9st 2lb; winners once this year to carry 3lb; twice, 5lb; and thrice, 7lb extra; horses that have not started three times, and not won, this year allowed 5lb; and if four times, 7lb; mile heats, 7 subs.

Mr. Lambden's Little Rover, 4 yrs (F. Buckle)	1	0	0	1
Mr. Martyn's c, by Mameluke, 3 yrs	0	3	0	2
Mr. Shelley's Schoolmistress, 4 yrs	0	1	0	3
Mr. Balchin's Lady Albert, 3 yrs	0	0	3	4
Mr. Theobald's Bracelet, 3 yrs	2	0	0	5
Mr. C. Day's f, by Godolphin, 3 yis	0	2	0	dr
Mr. Goring's Pholus, 4 yrs	3	0	dr.

First heat—betting: 6 to 4 on the field, 2 to 1 agst Pholus, and 5 to 1 agst Mameluke colt. The horses started at a very slow pace, neither making anything like running till they got to the road, where Little Rover, Bracelet, and Pholus, came out at improved speed; a smart race between the first two was won by the colt by a head. Second heat: Even between little Rover and the field, the latter for choice.—Schoolmistress and the Godolphin filly laid in front throughout, the former winning cleverly by three parts of a length. The pace good from end to end. Third heat: Even on Schoolmistress. A splendid race, the horses keeping together at an excellent pace, and finishing with a dead heat between Little Rover and the Mameluke colt.—Fourth heat: Little Rover was the favorite for this heat, and won it by a length cleverly.

Although confined to three stakes, the sport was excellent, and afforded considerable amusement to a respectable, but very thin company. We were sorry to find that the meagre appearance of the list was owing to the poverty of the fund—a circumstance which we, in common with many others, are induced to attribute to the collection and management having been taken out of the hands of the Racing Committee. Against the members of this body we have received a letter, evidently written in a bad spirit. Without entering into the policy of the law proceedings, it is sufficient to refer to the great improvement in the races since they were superintended by Baron Tessier and the Committee appointed by the inhabitants.—This, and the perfect fairness of their accounts afford abundant evidence of their competence and good intentions; and we feel assured, that the prosperity of the races cannot be more effectually ensured than by again placing them under their control.—Bell's Life in Lon. of Oct. 11.

Thursday last being the day appointed for the running for the Two mile Plate at Newmarket, the race came off as follows:—

Mr. W. Butler's Yellow Hammer, 12st. 2lb. (Mr J. Weatherby) 1 1
Mr. V. Finton's Leary Cove, 12st. 2lb. (Mr. W. Finton) 2 dr.

Won easily.—The two gentlemen jockeys, previously to starting, (of course) vaulted on their steeds like feathered Mercuries, and looked defiance to their enemies. Off they went; but, mirabile dictu! in running the first heat, they both went on the wrong side of the post, near Choke-jade, which was not discovered till after they had passed the judge's chair. They then turned back, went to the post, and made all right; but in running in again, there was a second mistake at the two-year old post, and they had again to turn back to correct their error. After a considerable display of manœuvring on the part of the jockey of Leary, (query, whether he had a "Lear-eye!") Yellow Hammer, who was "going" well, "knocked him down" as flat as a flounder, and won the stake. Afterwards, BEEF-steaks were the order of the day.

Cricketer's Register.

The wind-up dinner of the Taunton Club, at the Castle Inn, was a "flow of soul," perfectly characteristic of the choice spirits that surrounded "the mahogany" on the occasion; no "stumps" were down, but every one's "wicket up," right merrily determined to make the most of that conviviality and good feeling which the names of the Chairman and Vice (Captain Polhill and Colonel Lester) will always ensure, especially when assisted by the presence of Captain Maher and Sir John Jeffcott. The health of the Gallant President succeeded the usual loyal and appropriate toasts. On the "batting" with which his name was received, having subsided, Captain Polhill returned thanks, and, after adverting to the present high numerical and respectable character of the club, intimated the "melancholy intelligence" of the death that day of some important functionaries connected therewith. The consideration that it was a "natural death," was a consolation to him, and he hoped that the vacant places might be occupied by names more active and interested in the true welfare and comfort of that assemblage of social pleasures than the "dear departed"—he alluded to the Committee. The committee, however, were unanimously voted "not dead, but sleeping," until April next, when their valuable services, in conducting the necessary arrangements for another campaign, were solicited and accepted in profound potations of champagne! The important assistance of the Secretary, Treasurer, Storekeeper, and Caterer (Mr. Eales White), in the manifold duties of those offices, was most handsomely acknowledged, who, in returning thanks in the novel shape of a "natural death," hoped for the favor of "resurrection," that he might have the gratification of meeting the wishes of the Club by continuing the various occupations in which he was rejoiced to find he could be useful. As Chancellor of the Exchequer, he begged to announce that the finance department was more than satisfactory, and he was happy to say that he had not received a single resignation, and that many gentlemen had expressed a desire to be proposed as members at the first meeting of the Club. Thanks were cordially offered to Mr. and Mrs. Bluett, for their kind assistance in the catering department.—Ib.

Grouse Hunting, or Cockney's out of their Element.

"I say Jack, this grouse shooting, or hunting, as I call it, is no joke."—"I'm blessed if it is, Tom; I'm regularly knocked up; and there's that d——d Scotch Sawney with his bob-tailed cur, as fresh as the hether on which he stands. Ah! well, they may say as they like, but give me a slap at the small birds on Wimbledon Common in preference to your mountain sports; and if ever you catch me so far North again, I'll give you leave to let fly at me South. It my be grand for those that like it, but 'a little goes a great way with me, and, like a thunder-storm, the more I have of it, the less I like it."—"Egad, Jack, you're about right, and once safe back in the steamer, you'll never catch me this side the Tweed during my natural life! 'Every dog has his day,' they say, and I have had mine." "Aye, Tom; and the adage applies literally; for if poor Sport and Cato live another day, I'm not a member of the Stock Exchange!"—Ib.

The Trotting Challenge.—As we anticipated, Mr. Purdy's challenge to trot in divers ways turns out to be "bounce," and, no doubt, intended to give himself or his horses notoriety. Mr. Edwards was in attendance at the Peacock, at Islington, on Tuesday and Thursday last, but Mr. Purdy did not "show"—thus making fools of others, as well as himself. When he sends us a challenge again, we shall know how to treat it.—Bell's Life.

Mr. Cookes has purchased Mr. Golden's brother to Hope, which run third for the St. Leger. The price is said to be 1,000 guineas.—Ib.

Rifle Shooting.—On Monday last, the Kilmarnock Rifle Club held their last monthly shooting for the season, when the two medals were contended for by the members. The first medal was gained by Mr. William Wardrop, whose twelve shots amounted to 50 inches 3-8ths; and the second by Mr. Robert Crooks, whose twelve shots amounted to 57 inches 4-8ths. It is worthy of notice, that Mr. Crooks has now worn the second medal for two successive years, and has again taken it for the third year. After the shooting, the members of the Club dined together, according to annual custom; and spent the evening together in the greatest harmony.—Ib.

Hunting Extraordinary.—A recent discovery has been made of a quantity of coins in a forest belonging to the French government, in the commune of Avril, in France. On the 20th of September, some huntsman were pursuing a badger, when the animal took refuge in a burrow, from whence they endeavored to smoke him out, but failing in this, they began to excavate the soil, and in doing so discovered seventy or eighty pieces of silver. The Procureur, du Roi being informed of the discovery, visited the spot, accompanied by the Sous-Prefect and the Inspector of the Forests, and made further search, but were only able to find about ten or eleven small silver pieces of the time of Henry III. Their actual value was about five francs.—The coins discovered by the sportsmen were said to be worth about sixteen francs.—Ib

An Old Fox.—A person who had for many years owned a Fox, on whom he set much value on account of his docility. One day he made his escape, and his owner pursued him, but could not get a sight of him. At length, he met a stammering fellow, and accosted him with much haste and earnestness, "Have you seen my fox?" "D-d-did he h-ha-have a l-l-long b-b-bu-bush-y tail?" "Yes; which way did he go, tell me? "We wer-well; d-d-did he have a great l-l-long p-p-pe-peaked nose?" "Yes, yes; blast your picture! tell me where he went!" "N-n-now I v-vo-vow to you, I guess I-I ha-ha'nt seen him!"

A Fight between a Porpoise and an Alligator.—A few days ago, some gentlemen standing on the shore at St. Andrew's Bay, had an opportunity of witnessing a singular contest between a Porpoise and a large Alligator. The combat lasted about half an hour, at the end of which time the Alligator gave in, and soon after floated on shore in a dying condition. He was found to have been literally bruised to death, by the strokes which the Porpoise was seen to inflict upon him with his tail.—Pensacola Gaz.

Philadelphia is taking the lead apparently in club boats, and going backwards in steam. The following from the Camden Mail, (N. J.) opposite Philadelphia, is not bad:—

Bone and Sinew, versus Steam.—On Saturday, the launching of a new constructed row boat, from one of the yards of Kensington, was made the occasion of an exhibit of many others owned by the several rowing clubs of the city. In the course of the afternoon, one of these, a long snake-like craft who made her appearance at Toy's wharf, we are told, in crossing the stream between the two cities, fell into the wake of one of our crack ferry steamers, and actually rowed around her twice, during her trip, while she was under full way!

The Bangor, Me. Advertiser of Saturday, says—"An elopement took place in this city a few days ago—the lady was quite young. (about 14,) but her swain had arrived at years of discretion. They were pursued and overtaken, but the friends of the girl failed in recovering her. We think it proper to suppress names and particulars."

"The schoolmaster" who was "abroad" in Ohio until he got thirteen wives, has been sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment in the state penitentiary. Some editors, who we doubt not, are crusty bachelors like him of the "Spirit of the Times," say that the "crime carries its own punishment with it."—Mohawk Courier.

The editor of the Little Rock Advocate (Arkansas) says he has seen Col. Crockett, and shall now die contented. The Colonel was on his way to Texas.

A CHALLENGE!!!

WHEREAS some Billiard Table makers in this city and others interested in the cloth cushions, have taken every opportunity to falsify and depreciate my India Rubber Patent Billiard Cushions, saying they will not give as true angles as the cloth cushions, and by their misrepresentations to persons who wish to purchase, I have lost the sale of many tables. Therefore to test the matter, I will bank against any person who may come forward, not excepting the "poney" for a new suit of clothes, and if that is not an object to those "gentlemen," I will bank for the price of a new Billiard Table, or a further sum of one thousand dollars, to bank to make the truest angles, the balls to be thrown from four to forty feet, that is to play them hard enough to go against the banking cushion and return and stay in the string or baulk, or to return to the banking cushion and rolling off again as far as four feet or any intermediate distance,—they to bank against cloth and I will bank against India rubber cushions, thus giving the public and those who wish to purchase, the truth by a public trial. True banking is not the only advantage India rubber has over cloth for Billiard cushions, their height is only one inch and a half, they throw the balls much farther, a cue player can cause the ball to touch SEVEN cushions by a single blow, without the ball hopping, giving a much greater opportunity to play that beautiful angling game. They require no pulling up to prevent the balls hopping as they retain their shape without that trouble, they are as elastic in damp weather as in dry, known by players to be a great advantage, particularly in southern climates, with many other advantages too numerous to mention in these limits, in fact they will last much longer than any other, always retaining their shape and then are good for other purposes; it has been said that they freeze in a cold room, it is scarcely necessary to say that where a person can play billiards with comfort nothing can freeze.

N. B. If this challenge is not taken up, the public may rest assured that India Rubber makes the lowest and most elastic cushion for all weathers and climates.

STEAM CONFECTIONARY.

BOWERY STEAM CONFECTIONARY.—S. W. BRYHAM, begs to inform his numerous friends and the public, that he has now got his steam apparatus in full operation, in the manufacturing of Confectionary, on the most approved plan. In consequence of which, he is now prepared to execute all orders at the shortest notice, and on the most accommodating terms. Ever thankful to his numerous friends and the public for their very flattering patronage and success since his commencement in business, he pledges himself that his goods, as usual, shall be manufactured of the purest sugars and free from any deleterious coloring, the red only being made use of, and manufactured by the most experienced workmen; and, with regard to flavor, the many thousands who patronize my establishment can testify to the fact, that they never purchased any more delightful to the taste. Strangers who have not yet paid a visit to my steam manufactory, are most respectfully invited to call and judge for themselves, and become satisfied of the truth of the above assertions.—The most general assortment of every article in the line duly manufactured, fresh, pure, wholesome, and surpassed by none in the world for excellence of flavor and brilliancy of appearance. The syrup being clarified and passed through twelve different leaves or strainers by steam, has decidedly the advantage, both in appearance and in point of purity, over the common way of passing through the flannel bag which is used. Ever anxious and ever ready to please and give satisfaction to my friends and the public, I hope by still continuing to follow the good old principle, of honesty being the best policy, still to merit a share of public patronage.

NERVOUS ELIXIR.

THIS Medicine is prepared by G. DE ANGELIS, M. D. Member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New-York, and for many years a practitioner of Medicine in the Hospitals of Naples. The beneficial influence of this Medicine is experienced in the preservation of Health generally, and in cases of Fevers and disorders proceeding from long continued weakness of the stomach and nerves, or the injudicious use of Mercury. It is also admirably calculated to prevent and remove Dyspepsia, and such debility as is usually attendant on a weak stomach, by means of which worms are generated in the human body.

Dr. De Angelis during his practice since the year 1793, in this city, has successfully administered the Nervous Elixir to his patients, not only as a febrifuge, but as a great TONIC in all nervous diseases, and as the most effectual remedy in Spinal Consumption, &c.

☞Particular Directions for this purpose is given with bottles. Application to be made to the Doctor at his office, No. 196 Fulton street. n21

OLD GALEN'S HEAD DISPENSARY.

No. 12, Peck Slip, near Water street.

DR. EVANS continues his improved practice as usual, at his new established Dispensary, No. 12 Peck Slip. The public are respectfully apprised, that Dr. Evans, being regularly educated in the city of London, has been a member of the said faculty 37 years; has had 12 years hospital practice, and is well known as a practitioner in this city for the last 16 years.

The great success attending Dr. E.'s practice, in all delicate diseases, viz. Syphilis, Gonnorheas, Gleets, Strictures, &c. induces ignorant pretenders to copy after him—

Many valuable members of society are daily falling sacrifices to the artful baits held out by those unprincipled experimentalists. Strangers are particularly cautioned not to be deceived by ingenious puffing advertisements of any description. To be had, at the above Dispensary.

MINERVA'S BOX, containing a complete plan of Medicine for the cure of a certain disease, with full directions, in which the symptoms and treatment are pointed out with such brevity and accuracy, that every person may in this case become his own physician.

Also, a certain Preventative for the above disease, warranted, if used in time. Separate offices are provided, by which patients have free access without exposure to each others observation—inviolable secrecy obseeved.

All letters must be post paid.

Persons at a distance, by writing their case, and enclosing a fee, shall have medicines and full directions sent to any part of the Union. june 6

TO THE PUBLIC.

DR RALPH'S Improved Hygeian Pills. It is deemed unnecessary, in this address, to dwell upon the utility of this General and Domestic Remedy, the increasing demand for it, and the public confidence it has acquired, being the best proof of its value. It is proper, however, to state that the principle of Dr. Ralph's Pills is founded on the doctrines of the British College of Physicians and Royal College of Surgeons, London; and that they are sanctioned and recommended by the writings and practice of Sir Astley Cooper, Mr. Abernethy, and Dr. Babbington, as well as by most of the eminent practitioners of England and the Continent.

It is a point of much importance to assure the public that the Hygean Pills, which are sanctioned by these high authorities, are chiefly sold by druggists. Indeed the very serious consequences that have of late transpired from confirming the sale of Hygean Pills to tavern keepers and picture shops, have made this notice absolutely necessary. In order however to prevent the imposition of Spurious Hygean Pills of every kind, it has been found expedient to have the written signature of Dr. Ralph upon the ouside cover of every package. None are genuine, therefore, which are not signed as follows— JOS. RALPH, M. D.

Graduate of the University of Edinburgh; Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, &c. &c. and author of the Domestic Guide to Medicine. General Office, 38 Courtlandt street, New York, where country merchants and families are supplied.

N.B. In consequence of frequent and increasing consultations on the subject of the Improved Hygean Pills in various chronic and long standing disorders, Dr. Ralph is obliged (as much as possible) to confine himself to his own house in Courtlandt street, for private consultations and advice; but to those who really cannot afford the expense, he devotes two mornings in the week (Tuesday and Friday) until 12 o'clock, when advice and Hygean Pills are given GRATIS.

DR. HULL'S IMPROVED TRUSS

FOR the safety and satisfaction of the public it is worthy of notice, that this unrivalled instrument, in its present improved state, is the only one which has received the patronage of the Medical Faculty of this city, and is recommended by them as the only one that patients can rely upon for the safe retention and cure of Hernia. More than one thousand Physicians and Surgeons have expressed a decided preference for this Truss over all others heretofore or now in use. Valentine Mott, M. D. says:—"For the last 12 months the curative powers of Dr. Hull's Truss have been tested under my own observations with the most gratifying success, in cases of great difficulty, where the mutilated imitation trusses so common in our market, had only aggravated the disease. Dr. Hull is an experienced Surgeon, and his Truss, in my opinion, is the only one which is entitled to the patronage of the profession and the confidence of the public." Letters patent of the United States have been granted to Dr. Hull for 14 years from the last improvement, dated July, 7th, 1833. Dr. Hull's office; No. 132 Fulton street. 1

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT is not necessary to expatiate on the invaluable properties of the Genuine Vegetable Universal Medicines of the British College of Health, as their virtues are too well known to require it, but it is a duty we owe the public to point out in what manner they may be assured of obtaining the genuine article, instead of one or more of the numerous counterfeit preparations which are palmed off by rogues and impostors, either as "the genuine," or "improved," or under some other equally specious misrepresentation.

Note, in the first place—Morrison's pills, the genuine Hygeian Medicine, can never be purchased at a drug store; and in the next place—require the production of the seller's appointment, signed by me; see that the same name is written on the yellow label, at the back of each packet—and that they both correspond with one of the Agents, a list of whom may be obtained at 50 Canal street. This latter particular is the more to be regarded, as a late counterfeiter, to render his imposture more perfect, has not only filched the title, "Hygeian," but has also adopted a yellow label, somewhat similar to the genuine.

A few copies of the 2d volume of Morrisoniana, being a record of the proceedings of the British College of Health, during the year 1833, are just received, and may be had of the only Agents in New York, as follows: Mr. Joseph Stanley, Bookseller, 50 Canal street, next to the corner of Broadway; Mrs. King, 148 Fulton street, and the Rev. J. H. Browner, 95 Barrow street, and for the convenience of the numerous families residing in the various parts of the city, of the following sub-agents.—Messrs. Firth & Hall's Music store, No. 1, Franklin square; Mr. Daniel D. Smith, Bookseller, No 190 Greenwich street; Mr. George Kearsing, Gold Beater, No. 88 Reed street; Miss Elizabeth Weed, No. 402 Grand street.

By appointment of H. S. MOAT,
GENERAL AGENT, Smith street, Brooklyn.

Morrisoniana, Practical Proofs and Hygeian Record, particularly recommended to the perusal of all who are disposed to benefit their health, may be had of any of the Agents or Sub-Agents above named.

SMOKEY CHIMNEYS.

NO Cure no Pay. One of the greatest drawbacks to domestic economy and the nature of buildings, is a smokey chimney; and though so commonly met with, its origin is yet too frequently wrapped in doubt, to a fault of a perfect cure. So many causes combine, latent as well as apparent, that it cannot be considered any thing but a desideratum in science, to find some plan by which the evil may be eradicated, and the inhabitant effectually relieved from the disagreeable nuisance. It will be needless to enter into any discussion of a point which is open continually to the theory of every individual suffering under its influence. But, were it necessary, the advertiser is prompt to observe, that though the question, (simple as it is,) has employed the minds even of the mathematicians and philosophers, without success, the practical man is not without an antidote, which experience has taught him, to set the matter perfectly at rest. Notwithstanding the various causes which produce the unpleasant effect of smoking apartments, a few of which may be seated in the state of the atmosphere—the situation or aspect of the building or apartment—the prevailing points of the compass when the wind blows—the quantity and quality of the fuel, together with the facilities of draught in the flue, or the general malformation of the chimney, its height, &c., it is, nevertheless, a question of practice rather than theory, and the extraneous influences are only to be conquered by one who is thoroughly acquainted, from long experience, with their hidden and probable causes.

The advertiser, in calling the attention of the inhabitants of the City of New York to the subject, predicating his ability upon his long experience and attention to the subject, begs to say, that he will effectually cure, in the most inveterate instances, or forego all remuneration for his trouble.

DR HORNE,

CONTINUES to be consulted at his office.—Strangers are respectfully apprised Dr. Horne being legally bred to the medical profession in the city of London, has been a practical member of said Faculty of Physic 40 years, for the last 30 years in the city of New York. His practice from being general he confines to a particular branch of medicine, which engages his profound attention, viz—Lues Venerea, Scrofula, Scorbutus, Elophantiasis, Lepra, and all other diseases arising from impurity of blood. His well-known integrity challenges the severest scrutiny; his experience very great, his success astonishing. He cautions the unfortunate against the abuse of mercury; thousands are annually mercurialized out of life.

In very many thousands of cases committed to his care, of all grades and every degree of malignity, he has speedily restored his patients to health and a sound constitution. The decided preference given to Dr. Horne, fully demonstrates the confidence reposed in the skill and fidelity which distinguishes his practice. The learned Dr. Buchan emphatically observed, "Married persons, or those about to be married, should be particularly cautious of those affections. What a dreadful inheritance to transmit to posterity." See that your case is eradicated, not patched up. Persons afflicted with protracted and deplorable cases need not despair of a complete recovery, by applying to Dr. Horne. Recent affections, when local, are, without the use of mercury, extinguished in a few days. Gleets and Strictures removed by an easy method.

☞ The Secretaries of all regularly organized Courses may have the time of their respective meetings inserted under this head, free of expense. It would much conduce to their interest, and that of Turfmen and Breeders generally, if they apprized the Editor at an early date when their races would come off. For a great number of Racing and Trotting MATCHES, and CHALLENGES of various kinds, see previous numbers of The New York Spirit of the Times.

General Summary.

The fire offices in London calculate upon an alarm every day, and thirty-two serious fires every year.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex is on a visit to Mr. Thistlewayte, at that gentleman's seat in Hampshire. The royal duke enjoys excellent health, and intends to make a tour of the county before his return to Kensington Palace.

The Prince de Joinville, third son of Louis Phillippe and the future admiral of the French Navy, has returned to Paris from his visit to England and Ireland.

Dr. Thomas P. Barton, of Philadelphia, United States Charge d'Affaires, at Paris, married the daughter of Mr. Livingston, late Minister. A few years ago, at Hoboken, he shot young Graham, of New-York, in a duel, and soon afterwards went to France.

The boxes of Caldwell's new theatre are rented at four thousand dollars each, during the season. Single seats in the front rows, are one dollar and a half—other seats one dollar.

Orthography.—The following very perspicuous entry appears in the book kept at the Railway office in Duke-street, for the remarks and observations of passengers:—
"By axadent Coming on the railway the Sparks from the ingon burnt Two humberelos."

Theatrical.—Little Hill, the laughing and laughable caricaturist of English fashionables and American Yankeeism, was warmly greeted by the audience at old Holiday last night.—Baltimore Patriot.

The Woods opened to rather a thin house at the Tremont on Monday night. The Bostonians do not appear to have much music in their souls this cold weather.

The Warren is driving a good business with its dogs, monkeys, contortionists, &c.—Boston M. Post.

Mr. Persico, the Italian artist, celebrated for his ornaments and statuary for the Capitol at Washington, is now in Boston, says the Advocate, engaged in the execution of busts of the Hon. Edward Everett and the Rev. Dr. Channing.

New-York Apple Stalls.—The editor of the Jeffersonian says that curiosity having tempted him to inquire of an apple woman, at one of the street corners, how much she made in a day, he received for an answer, "five dollars clear of all expenses, and sometimes more."

Skating.—Now the canal is frozen 'as stiff as a poker,' from New-Haven to Northampton, the Courier at the latter place with much philosophical resignation recommends to turn it into a skating school, as one of the healthiest modes of obtaining athletic exercises—expanding the chest, giving action to the muscles, and a glow on the cheek.

A Bear Calf.—As Mr. ——, of Jackson county, (Ia.) was returning from a neighboring grog-shop a few evenings since, he was most furiously attacked by a bear of the largest size, which he succeeded in "mauling" to death with his fists after a splendid contest of five minutes. Next morning accompanied by two of his neighbors, he repaired to the battle field, when lo, he had killed a fine yearling CALF.—Cincinnati Whig.

A down east editor found himself in a sad pickle last week; the paper wet down for the week's impression, was frozen into a solid mass, and it took him, "his devil, and his devil's devil," three days and three nights to put it into working order.

Two men lately fought in Mobile about a rooster; they were brought before the Circuit Court, and the one who struck the first blow fined $25.

At a sale of full blooded Durham cattle in Kentucky on the 12th ult. a three year old cow brought $300; a nine months heifer $295; a nine year old cow $200; a bull calf $233, and others at similar prices.

Mr. NEILSON POE, late Editor of the Frederick Examiner, has become part owner and joint Editor of the Baltimore Chronicle, with Samuel Barnes, Esq.

Sheridan Knowles.—The Commercial Advertiser of Saturday "backs out" of the assertions it made some time since in reference to this gentleman, imputing to him an improper intimacy with a young actress, whom he, from motives of benevolence, took charge of while in this country. We doubt not that Colonel Stone will find out that he has done well by thus seasonably obeying the hint which several of his contemporaries—we among the rest—gave him a short time back.

A Good One.—The Kennebeck Journal says that the extraordinary appearance in the heavens some nights since are conjectured by some to have been the tip of the tail of the Comet, which was snapped off in the short turn of the perihelion.

☞ "Mr. Stetson," said a gentleman boarder at the Tremont House yesterday, "Mr. Stetson, I have been strolling through your streets, looking at your public buildings, but I can't find the new Court House—they told me it was in Court-street." "I will send one of the boys with you, sir," replied Charles, with infinite promptitude and gravity: "you will find it hid behind the Portico."
Boston Transcript.

A subscription of $260,000 has been made, by the citizens of Buffalo, for the founding of a college in that place, and this was performed in four days—an unparalleled instance of munificence in the history of the United States. In this sum are included a grant of land by the city authorities, valued at $50,000, and the endowment of seven Professorships of $15,000 each.

Deaf Burke and Young Langan.—A match has been made between these men at Liverpool, to come off on Tuesday, the 8th of December.

NO Festival, but a Benefit for OLD BARNES; not a complimentary one, though he will esteem it a particular compliment from all those ladies and gentlemen who may honor him by their presence. Mr. Simpson not having any night to spare for an engagement for Mr. Barnes, (whose friends have expressed a most earnest desire to see him again, prior to his almost immediate departure for the South and West,) has, in the kindest manner, appropriated next Saturday, December 12th, for his Benefit; on which occasion, he will not be aided by any great auxiliaries, but assisted by his wife and daughter, when he trusts that the following bill will be accepted (at the usual prices) by his New-York friends and patrons.

The evening's entertainments to commence with the musical farce, in one act, called SPRIGS OF LAUREL—Nipperkin, Mr. Barnes. After which, Rowe's celebrated tragedy of JANE SHORE—the part of Jane Shore by "my daughter Charlotte, a native of N. York"—Alicia, Mrs. Barnes (her first appearance in that character). To conclude with the new drama (never acted in the theatre) called THE GOLDEN FARMER, or the Last Crime—Jemmy Twitcher, Mr. Barnes—Elizabeth, Mrs. Barnes.

THE IMPORTED HORSE DAGHEE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell an interest (not to exceed one half) in the thorough-bred racer Daghee. This splendid stallion challenges a comparison with any horse in the United States, for blood, high form, and racing points and powers. He was imported from England, when a yearling, into Canada, and was brought to New-York last spring. He has never appeared on the turf: in his trials, however, he gave proofs of becoming a capital racer; and such (I am told by good authority) was the confidence of his former owner, Sir Robert Barrie, in his great speed and bottom, that he was desirous to match him against any horse in Canada, or the United States, when coming three years old; at which time he was lamed in training, for 1000*l.* sterling, four mile heats. The pedigree of DAGHEE (which I hold with the necessary authentication) prove him to be descended on the side of the dam from the "Nedgid Arabian," which was his grandsire, and said to be one of the finest Arabians ever imported into England: and on the side of his sire, "MULEY." Any one acquainted with the ORVILLE stock will know how to appreciate him. A minute description of Daghee, together with his pedigree, can be seen in the "American Turf Register," Vol. V., No. 5, p. 225, for 1834; also, in those numbers of "The Spirit of the Times" published in the month of March and April last. Daghee can be seen in Elizabeth-town, N. J., whither communications on this subject should be directed. I have not yet determined where he will stand the ensuing season. After I have done so, the interest now offered will cease to be in market. E. C. MAYO.

THOROUGH-BRED HORSES FOR SALE.

THE following thorough-bred horses, belonging to the estate of the late BELA BADGER, of Bucks county, Pennsylvania, are offered for sale, viz.:—
JOHN RICHARDS,
VALENTINE (Imported),
FLYING DUTCHMAN,
CHIFNEY, PRIAM.

The four first-named horses are at Gen. John Falkner's, Gerrard County, Kentucky. Priam is in Preble County, Ohio.

The terms of payment (good security being given) will be made easy to purchasers.

Proposals, if directed to Samuel Badger, Ex. to the estate at Philadelphia, or to Joseph H. Hellings, care of Gen. Falkner, Lancaster, Gerrard County, Kentucky, will meet with prompt attention. n28—9w

FOR SALE,

THE FULL-BLOODED HORSE NIAGARA, bred at Dosoris, by Walter Livingston, Esq. Niagara was got by Eclipse, out of Young Romp—Young Romp by Luroc, out of Old Romp, full-sister to Miller's Damsel, and got by imp. Messenger out of Constable's imp. Pot-8-os mare. Niagara's dam, Young Romp, is also the dam of Camilla and Boreline, both winners.

Niagara has started but four times, and won three out of those four races, viz:—In the Spring of 1833, a sweepstakes for three-year olds, mile heats, over the Union Course, $500 entrance, half forfeit, seven subscribers. In the Fall of 1833, over the Union Course, he won the sweepstakes for three-year olds, $400 entrance, four miles out, beating Col. Johnson's Cadet. In the Spring of 1834, he won the three-mile purse at Poughkeepsie. In the same Spring, (1834) he started, entirely out of condition,) for the three-mile purse over the Union Course, and was drawn after the first heat. This is the only heat he ever lost. For these races, see Skinner's American Turf Register.

In the Fall of 1834, he was badly lamed in the shoulder, and has never started since.

Niagara is a beautiful blood bay, without spot or blemish of any kind, with black legs, mane, and tail; he is about 15½ hands high—an uncommonly deep-chested, muscular, and powerful horse, and one of the handsomest stallions of the Northern country. It will be seen from his pedigree, that he is a bred-in horse, and of the purest stock, having no blood in his veins that differs from that of his sire, American Eclipse. He would be a valuable acquisition to any part of the country, where well-bred horses, with the strength and power of the Eclipse stock, are wanted for the Turf, Saddle, or Harness. He may be seen at my stables on Long Island.

Should any other or more particular information be required, it may be had by applying to me, at No. 14 Barclay-street, New-York. JOHN C. STEVENS.
